To Kill or Not to Kill.
Paderewski Still Practices.
Your Rich Relative.
The Host Coat.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

LOS ANGELES, March 6.

WHILE GOV. Brucker signs a bill to re-establish capital punishment in Michigan, California discusses, and will adopt, it is hoped, a bill abolishing capital punishment.

The state cannot discourage murder by imitating murders, and killing as they kill.

Instead of death, the extreme penalty should be life imprisonment, and it should mean LIFE IMPRISONMENT with eight hours for work, eight hours for sleep, eight hours for regret and reflection.

Two criminals recently received sentences aggregating more than 200 years, and it was announced officially that they would actually stay in jail about 14 years. That makes a joke of justice.

THE ONE "secret of success" is work.

Paderewski, in his private car on a sidetrack in Los Angeles, amazed railroad workers by practicing for hours on the piano that he carries with him. One worker remarked:

"They say he's the best piano player in the world, and I listen to him, still practicing."

That is one reason why he is the best player in the world. The other reason is his possession of genius.

But even genius, without work, as proved by the careers of many brilliant men born rich, is genius wasted.

IT IS a comfort to have rich relatives even when you feel poor, and the nation's Uncle Sam is rich. He has in solid gold $4,590,000,000, within 100 millions of the greatest amount he ever had.

With such a gold supply it is hard to understand why such a fuss should be made about the soldiers' bonus.

But everything about finance is hard to understand.

FASHIONABLE tailors in New York exhibit what they call "host coats." Brightly colored, blue with green lapels, or wine-colored with red lapels, they allow the eaters and drinkers at the party to pick out the man who is paying the bills and prevent mistaking him for the butler.

The latter advantage is not important, because the butler may usually be recognized by his expression of concentrated intelligence, and is nearly always sober.

HERBERT SWOPE had this "host coat" idea, long ago, wearing an evening suit of beautiful claret-colored damask.

Why, no one knew. In his house there can't be any mistake about the host. And the butler had nothing to do with it, for Swope's servants are black.

A NEW NAME, marihuana, has been added to the list of deadly drugs that form a habit, and stupefy the nerves. This news interests the general public, for marihuana "touched up with a bit of cocaine" makes the criminal, according to Admiral Hobson, "a desperate man, without pity or fear."

There are some things worse even than whisky.

PRESIDENT HOOVER describes the Franco-Italian naval agreement as "a matter for congratulation to the whole world."

It is pleasing to know that France, Italy and other European countries probably will not fight for some time.

It would be more pleasing, and matter for congratulation to all of our 48 states, if we knew that we were thoroughly prepared, regardless of what France, Italy or any other nation might do.

IN OPENING bids on the Boulder Dam the government was surprised to find that Six Companies, Inc., of San Francisco had won the general contract for dam, power plant and appurtenant work with a bid of only $48,890,955, many millions below the government estimate. The work will start in 30 days.

WHEN IT is finished, on the theory that the people and the government can spend money, but can't manage a business, the property will be turned over for exploitation to private individuals that can manage a business.

THE "UTILITY" stocks, that distribute light, power, etc., were cheerful and "strong" in yesterday's dull market. A formal statement from the White House that the government must not go into business for itself encouraged the power stock owners.

It is reassuring to know that you can exploit the people's necessities and natural monopolies without any danger of competition from their government.

THOMPSON'S MARRIAGE ADMITTED

Pittsburgh Widow Third Bride of Ex-Coal Baron In 1929 W. Va. Ceremony

Josiah V. Thompson, the one-time multi-millionaire of Uniontown, who has been kept busy the last few days denying that he had been quietly married in 1929, changed his mind today and admitted he was a 72-year-old benedict.

This was the announcement made by Attorney Joseph H. Bialas, of Pittsburgh:

"Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Thompson authorize me to announce their marriage, which took place December 14, 1929, at New Cumberland, W. Va. They felt as the marriage concerned only themselves, there was no necessity for making a public announcement at that time. Since, however, the report of the wedding is being discussed, they have no hesitancy in now confirming the marriage."

PLANS UNREVEALED

From Uniontown today, Thompson had this to say:

"I expect to live my life with honor and integrity in the future as I have in the past, and as every good, moral law-abiding person should. I have much work to do and I expect to continue doing it in the future, as I have done in the past. My vocation and avocation are very well known and need no further elaboration."

Mr. Thompson had nothing to say regarding family plans.

The third Mrs. Thompson was

SHIP STANDS BY CRIPPLED LINER

NEW YORK, March 6.—(INS.)—Safety of the passengers and crew of the Red Cross liner Rosalind was virtually assured this morning as the S. S. Newfoundland, of the same line, stood by the disabled ship awaiting the arrival of a tug from Halifax.

Meantime, the storm had abated, it was reported to the line offices here. The tug was expected to reach the Rosalind at any moment and take it in tow to Halifax.

With 33 passengers and a crew of about 70, the Rosalind threw her propeller yesterday during the violent storms which swept the Atlantic seaboard as she was about 150 miles southeast of the Nova Scotian coast. She was en route to New York from St. John's.

Poincare Illness Worries Friends

PARIS, March 6.—(AP.)—The slow progress of Raymond Poincare, French statesman, toward complete recovery from his illness of last fall and this winter is disquieting to his friends.

Dr. Boidin continues to visit his patient regularly. It was denied today, however, that the former President was any worse or had undergone a serious crisis yesterday.

Clear Postoffice Site of Rail Lines

Work was started today on removal of Pennsylvania Railroad tracks from the foundation lines of the new postoffice building. Elevated ground between the present tracks and the Bigelow boulevard, between Seventh avenue and the Pennsylvania Station, was being cut away. Widening at the widest point will be 18 feet. Removal of the tracks to the new right-of-way will eliminate a curve now existing between the Fourth Avenue Tunnel and the station.

Hoover Plans Visit to Sick Son at Asheville

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(AP.)—Freed from the heavy cares of the congressional season, President Hoover is planning a brief visit with his convalescent son in Asheville, N. C.

If he can leave Saturday night, as he plans, the Chief Executive will see Herbert Hoover, Jr., on Sunday for the first time since the latter forsook the Rapidan camp for the Carolina resort last fall. Mrs. Hoover probably will accompany him. It would be her second visit to see the younger Hoover, who is making good progress toward recovery of his health.

The schedule will give Mr. Hoover only one day in Asheville, for he would leave late Sunday to be at his desk as usual Monday morning. In addition to other affairs, he was left something like 400 bills to sign.

BOY SOBS STORY OF GIN PARTY TRAGEDY

Emotion Overcomes Kirkland Relating Love for Arlene And Describing Death

VALPARAISO, Ind., March 6.—(A.P.)—Virgil Kirkland, 20-year-old Gary youth, took the stand today to defend himself against murder charges as a result of the death of Arlene Draves, his 18-year-old high school sweetheart, following a "gin party" of young people at Gary, Ind.

With flushed face and shining eyes, Kirkland answered the preliminary questions put to him by Barratt O'Hart, of defense counsel.

KIRKLAND SOBS

As the highlight of this story, Kirkland, crying and sobbing at times, told hesitatingly of an alleged voluntary relationship with Arlene at the fatal "whoopee" party.

Kirkland contended the girl was conscious when she left the party and went with him and two other young men to a hot dog stand. The prosecution claimed she was unconscious and in that state attacked.

Kirkland said the girl fell off a porch chair while he was avowing his love. This injury was accidental, the defense holds; the state that Kirkland knocked her down.

Kirkland said he was engaged to the girl and previous to the party, they planned an elopement to Valparaiso. They went to the Porter County courthouse, but changed their minds.

Clashes between opposing lawyers interrupted both direct and cross examinations. Attorney O'Hara finally shouting:

UNDERWOOD QUIZZED

At one time Underwood was questioned by the witness when the prosecutor asked if Kirkland knew there was to be liquor at the party. Kirkland asking:

"Did you ever see a party of Texas So Flat It Appears That Voliva Is Right

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Voliva is back from a round-the-world trip and still claims it's flatter than yesterday's waffles.

Why doesn't he talk it over with Einstein, who proved his relativity theory with trains? If you are in a train and the train is in a depot and another train starts, you cannot tell whether your train is moving, the other train is going or whether the depot is skidding.

We've tried it and it works. Which proves that Einstein is the only man who ever got anywhere waving at trains.

Voliva claims the world must be flat because his heels wear out evenly. Well, it's either round or we're bowlegged.

He also says that Amundsen fell off the edge of the North

MARK OF HEEL TRAPS SUSPECT

A heel print in the mud led Police Chief Ralph B. Miller, of Dormont, to the capture of an alleged burglar, said to have broken into the home of Police Lieut. Fred Wilson at 1423 Mervin avenue, Wednesday, stealing more than $5,000 worth of jewelry, while Lieut. Wilson and his wife were playing cards in the living room.

The suspect, arrested late yesterday, said he was Paul Washabaugh, 17, of 225 Lavina avenue, Mt. Lebanon. According to Chief Miller, he confessed and took police to his home, where the loot was recovered.

Inspection of the ground below the bedroom window revealed the print of a heel with a metal cleat. When Washabaugh was arrested yesterday as a suspicious person, Chief Miller noticed his shoes had such cleats. A short questioning resulted in the youth confessing, it is said.

Footprints Trap Burglar Suspect

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., March 6.—(INS.)—The sheriff's office today was examining fingerprints to determine the identity of a man who said he was John Wesley, 32, of Scranton, Pa., shot in the thigh by a member of a sheriff's posse which tracked him for 15 miles through backwoods near here by footprints of a peculiar pattern which corresponded to shoes he was wearing when captured. He is charged with 13 burglaries.

City's Macaroni Orders Placed With One Firm On Single Bid

All of the macaroni, spaghetti and noodles used at Mayview is furnished by the W. Boehm Company without other bids being taken, according to records in the controller's office.

Representatives of several large firms say they were never invited to bid.

Last year there was a steadily declining market for this type of goods, but vouchers show that the city Department of Supplies failed to take advantage of it.

HIGH PRICES STAND

The same prices were paid all year, seven cents a pound for macaroni and spaghetti and eight cents a pound for noodles. This compares with a present market of around five cents a pound on macaroni.

The Mayview requisition file shows that Boehm's goods were frequently requested, leaving no room for outside bidders. The total of the orders to the one concern for the year was $1,981.98.

The Mayview orders were given in every month except September.

NO BIDS ASKED

Individual orders were all for less than $500 and for that reason the supplies department was able to make its purchase without the formal advertising for bids which would have invited general and competitive bidding.

Records of the city controller's office show that by the method used none other than the favored company bid, indicating, dealers say, that no effort was made to obtain the best prices possible.

KERR AGREES TO OPEN BOOKS

Prosecutor and Controller Confer on Methods in Checking Buying Accounts

BULLETIN.

A citizens committee was formed today to conduct an independent audit of the City Department of Supplies. With the consent of City Controller James P. Kerr, the citizens' audit will begin Tuesday, simultaneously with that to be conducted by Kerr.

Main & Co. will be the auditors. Funds for the work they will do will be provided by the citizens committee and the League of Women Voters.

The meeting at which the audit was decided upon was held late this afternoon in the Duquesne Club. Announcement of the audit was made by Joseph Dilworth, one of the leaders of the citizens' group.

The plan of the committee is to reveal the real extent of the irregularities in the Department of Supplies which resulted in the dismissal of its director, Col. B. L. Succop.

The executive committee of the Citizens' Committee comprises:

L. M. Johnston, chairman; William P. Witherow, William R. Scott, Francis S. Guthrie, Maurice R. Scharff, Grant Curry and Mr. Dilworth.

As public demand for action grew in intensity City Controller James P. Kerr announced today after a conference with District Attorney Andrew T. Park that enough men would be put to work auditing the City Department of Supplies to complete it in a week. The district attorney's office will be represented at the audit.

Kerr and Park were closeted in the latter's office for 10 minutes. At the conclusion Kerr said:

"We are going ahead with the audit. There is nothing to conceal. If the district attorney's office is to be represented in the audit I have no objection. The question of who will make the audit has not been determined, but sufficient men will be put to work to clear it up in a week."

The prosecutor declined to discuss his conference with Controller Kerr. He later was closeted for half an hour with City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt. Neither would talk afterwards. They were understood to be discussing legal phases of the audit.

Reports were current today that a citizens' committee to include leading business men was being formed to join in a demand for a public investigation along lines suggested by the League of Women

RAE URGES ACTION BY COUNCIL

James Rae, president of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, today joined the swelling ranks of those demanding a public investigation of the Department of Supplies and urged punishment of any wrongdoing.

ASK OPEN QUIZ

Other developments:

1—The Allied Boards of Trade called on Council to conduct an open inquiry into admitted irregularities in the supplies department and authorized a committee to join in an appeal to the courts, if Council fails to act.

2—The North Side Chamber of Commerce demanded that city authorities halt the "waste of taxpayers' money and deplored Council's failure to start an open investigation.

President Rae of the Chamber of Commerce, made this statement:

"The Chamber of Commerce through its proper committee has been following closely each day the developments regarding the department of supplies of our city. Controller Kerr is to be commended for the prompt decision to make a thorough-going audit of the operation of the department.

"Such frankness on the part of a public official is certainly reassuring. Only this audit will show the public the extent of any wrongdoing or irregularities and determine the justification for action against those responsible.

PUBLIC JUSTIFIED

"My own personal judgment is that City Council would be controlled by sound public policy to now recognize that the public is justified in demanding from them, as the body controlling appropriations, every definite and frank assurance given wide publicity that they as Council members would assume their full responsibility to correct irregularities of operation and punish any wrongdoing revealed by this competent audit.

"Such plain speaking on the part of Council members will bring to them prompt approval from fair-minded citizens."

The resolution adopted by the Allied Boards of Trade calls for an open investigation and provides for a committee to act with other civic bodies in appealing to the courts should Council refuse to act.

The North Side Chamber of Commerce, representing 632 North Side business men, joined in the fight for an inquiry with a resolution declaring authorities should take action to prevent the waste of taxpayers' money and "deplored the fact that Council failed to order a public investigation" of the department.

JUDGE, PROSECUTOR CONFER

District Attorney Park and Presiding Judge George V. Moore, of Criminal Court, have held repeated conferences and are reported ready to act if they can be satisfied that grounds exist.

Copies of the resolution of the Allied Boards have been forwarded to Gov. Pinchot, local representatives in the Legislature, the Mayor and members of Council.

With several members of Council reported wavering in their determination to shelve the food investigation, there was some indication that Councilmen Robert Garland and Charles Anderson may receive support in their stand for an open probe.

Council meets Monday for final action on the League of Women Voters' request for an investigation and audit of affairs of the department, including contract forms, bid tabulations and awards.

MAYOR TO YIELD DUTIES

Mayor Charles H. Kline was preparing today to relinquish the duties of director of the Department of Supplies to Col. William R. Dunlap, who has accepted the appointment.

Council is expected to ratify Dunlap's appointment Monday and the Mayor will then administer the oath, it was indicated. Dunlap succeeds Succop, dismissed by the Mayor who has been awarding contracts since Succop retired.

John S. Herron, president of Council, defended the majority in Council and the city administration in refusing an open probe of the food purchase charges last night at a dinner of the Pittsburgh Motor Club for John M. Rice, retiring president.

Herron said:

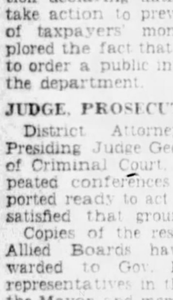
"Council has a thousand-and-one things to consider. It would be more constructive if those who are attacking us would cooperate instead. The newspapers have reversed the motto of the Elks, who write their brothers' faults in sand, for the papers say: 'We'll write the faults of our public officials on the front page and save their virtues, if any, for the obituary column.'"

Coolidge Sees Benefit In Loan Supervision

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., March 6.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

The Senate has resolved that the executive department of the government should take no action concerning making foreign loans by the people of this country. Early in the Harding administration when credit was scarce and interest high, foreigners were borrowing our capital. There was nothing to prevent their getting it even to use in hindering our own efforts for domestic or international welfare. Hence the suggestion, adopted after conference with banking interests, that the State Department be consulted before consummating such loans. Such a policy is pursued by some if not all foreign governments.



Mr. Coolidge

While there is much to be said for permitting our people to do what they want with their own money, yet it seems clear that there should be some harmony of policy between the great power of finance and our international relations. No new responsibility is undertaken by the State Department in stating its position concerning a loan. It does not assume the credit of the borrower is good or bad nor imply any additional burden to our government if the loan is not paid. It does assume that our financial power shall be conserved for our own people and shall co-operate with our diplomatic power.

AUDIT OUSTS 3 HIGHWAY AIDES

More and just as drastic action as that which yesterday resulted in the firing of two employes and the suspension of another in the Pittsburgh office of the State Highways Department was anticipated today.

"Rumors of irregularities," according to Highway Secretary Samuel S. Lewis, resulted in auditors being sent here, and the dismissals and suspensions followed.

The dismissed employes are Charles H. Abbott, of 403 Arlington avenue, Mt. Oliver Borough, former assistant division engineer at $3,600 a year, and Robert A. Beatty, of 238 Parkfield avenue, Carrick, former superintendent of maintenance of the Allegheny County section, at $2,700. The suspended employe is Cecil L. DRY ROW SPLITS DEMOCRAT RANKS

Prohibition Issue Pushed Into Open at Committee Meet; Action Seen as Strategy

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The prohibition issue, as it affects the Democratic party, was pushed squarely into the open today—there to remain until the national convention next year makes its choice of wet or dry for the presidential campaign of 1932.

The process of getting it into the open left some ruffled feelings among those who participated in yesterday's meeting of the national committee, but today in all factions there was apparent relief that the controversy has been dragged from darkness into the light of discussion.

EFFECT TO BE DECIDED

For the next 16 months, Chairman John J. Raskob's proposal that the party adopt a "home rule" plank on the liquor question in the 1932 platform promises to be the Democrats' principal topic of conversation. Its effect on the party and its chances for the presidency next year remains to be seen.

In 1928, the Democrats presented the anomaly of a dry platform and a wet candidate. In 1932, Chairman Raskob and ex-Gov. Al Smith are determined that no such paradox will be offered. They are confident that next year both the platform and the candidate will opose prohibition, which they envision as probably the outstanding issue, with President Hoover championing the dry side.

URGES NEW AMENDMENT

Raskob's proposal does not contemplate repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, but proposes to amend the amendment, or to write a totally new one, making the original amendment inapplicable to states which by referendum decide they want to deal with the liquor problem in their own way.

Thus, Kansas could continue dry, with federal assistance in preventing interstate smuggling of liquor, while New York or New Jersey could set up within their own borders any form of liquor control they desired. Chairman Raskob described the proposal as "home rule."

STRATEGIC MOVE

The strategy in pushing the proposal at this time is that it will allow a year's discussion in advance of the 1932 convention, so delegations may be chosen with the full knowledge of what they are going to be asked to indorse, and go to the convention with the public opinion of their communities crystallized.

HOOVER LETS LEGGE QUIT

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(AP.)—President Hoover has accepted the resignation of Alexander P. Legge as chairman of the Farm Board.

Mr. Hoover plans to make a formal announcement later in the day. It could not be learned whether he would announce Legge's successor then.

Vice Chairman Stone has been often mentioned as the next chairman.

Legge sent his resignation to the White House nearly two weeks ago. President Hoover is understood to have attempted to persuade him to remain another year.

Federal Food Survey May Be Held Here

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(AP.)—There is a possibility that a food survey may be started by the Department of Commerce in the Pittsburgh district. The department has advised Senator Davis that although there is no money available for conducting a thorough investigation of the distribution of food in the city, it may be possible to make "a modest beginning" of such a survey.

BOY SOBS STORY OF GIN PARTY

young people where there wasn't liquor, Mr. Underwood?"

The prosecutor replied:

"Young people didn't do those things when I was young."

Much of Kirkland's testimony was of a most personal character. Underwood led Kirkland through the details of the porch fall. The youth stood up and demonstrated how the girl fell forward, striking her head.

VICTIM'S KIN IN COURT

The Gary youth wore the same dark blue suit that he has on all the trial sessions. Facing him across the court room were brothers and sisters of Arlene and his mother. Within a few arm lengths was Charles Draves, father of Arlene.

Kirkland for the first time during the trial faced those who loved him and those who say only his life will atone for their loss.

Tears came to Kirkland's eyes at the first mention of Arlene Draves' name when O'Hara said:

"Were you acquainted with Arlene Draves?"

He then added quickly as the boy put his hands to his eyes:

MET IN DANCE HALL

The meeting was at a Gary dance hall. Arlene was leaning against a radiator when Kirkland entered. He said:

"She appealed to me, and I asked her for a dance. I asked her for a date, but she said her folks insisted that she not date anybody until she was older."

Arlene was 15 then, and the accused youth 17.

Several times O'Hara had to encourage his witness, who could scarcely keep back the tears. He repeated:

"Brace up, boy, brace up."

O'Hara then asked him to tell of the first time "Arlene kissed you."

Kirkland broke down completely, and O'Hara asked for a recess when the defendant was asked if he loved Arlene. The boy sobbed:

"Course, I did."

Prosecutor John Underwood objected to the detailed revelation, and Judge Grant Crumpacker cautioned the examiner to hold his questions to relevant matter. O'Hara asserted:

"Why, Mr. Underwood, this young love is the most important thing in this case."

Failure to Protect People Spurs Municipal Ownership Demand, Witness Says

By ED PRENDERGAST
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, March 6.—Charles Loveland, one of Wilkes-Barre's wealthiest citizens, today told the Moore investigating committee that many people had been converted to municipal ownership because of the Public Service Commission's failure to protect the people.

He said:

"As constituted, I don't think we have reason to expect justice from the Public Service Commission. I believe in an appointive board.

"I also believe many people who otherwise were against municipal ownership have come to the conclusion it is the only way to preserve natural resources and serve the peoples' needs."

VALUATION DETAILS

Roy Hasselman, Cleveland engineer, went into extensive valuation details of the Scranton-Spring Brook Water Service Company, whose rates are alleged to be abusively exorbitant.

The House committee called upon the Public Service Commission to furnish definite data covering every step of the Scranton-Springbrook Water Company case prior to the rendering of the decision.

The request of the committee is divided into seven specific questions, each covering some particular phase of the case. Submission of the data to the committee will remove the necessity of hearing additional witnesses in the case.

The Senate investigating committee stood adjourned today.

PINCHOT HITS GREED

Gov. Gifford Pinchot, emphasizing in a radio address last night that he is waging a battle to make effective the regulation of public utilities, declared the utilities are doing everything to drive the people away from regulation into public ownership.

The Governor declared:

"If public ownership comes to the United States, the utilities will be to blame."

The Governor, stressing these points, paid his compliments to Msgr. John J. Curran, of Wilkes-Barre, and his 2,000 followers who yesterday stormed the House to hear their leader testify to the practices of the Scranton Spring Brook Water Service Company and to testify that "legislation is being prepared to substitute municipal ownership for the lack of regulation."

In his address the Governor praised the group that in more than 30 buses and hundreds of private cars swept on Harrisburg to protest the advance in water rates, up to 600 per cent in some cases, which the Public Service Commission granted last December.

INVITE UTILITY COMPLAINTS

HARRISBURG, March 6.—Pittsburgh, McKeesport, Clairton and Duquesne, as well as other cities in the state, have been asked to make their complaints on utility companies before the House investigating committee March 12.

In a letter to the mayors of the first, second and third class cities the Moore committee, through its secretary, Bart Richards, notified them that the hearing would begin that day at 10 a. m. It states:

"If you have any complaints arising out of your contracts with the utility corporations serving your community, or with the Public Service Commission, such complaints will be heard on the date mentioned."

Borough Solicits Utilities Complaints

FARRELL, Pa., March 6.—Borough Council has notified local residents that any complaints which they may have against the public utilities should be put in writing and left with Secretary Lloyd S. Newton. A committee will take all complaints to Harrisburg, March 11, and present them at the hearing on the utilities.

LOS ANGELES, March 6.—(AP.)—Two men and a woman faced arraignment in Superior Court today on charges growing out of the alleged operation of a Hollywood "love market."

A card index of more than 100 girls, ranging from 16 to 20 years old, and another index of clients, listing some of the best-known men of wealth in the city, was found in the Hollywood studio of William H. Joblemann, 36, former publicity agent, District Attorney Buron Fitts said.

John P. Mills, wealthy Los Angeles and San Diego broker, was arrested on charges made by a 16-year-old girl. He was released under a $5,000 bond, and faced arraignment today with Joblemann and Olive Clark Day, 24, former actress, accused of complicity in the offense. Joblemann and Miss Day were held in jail.

Five girl victims of the alleged market were in technical custody and others were released to their parents. Fitts said other arrests of men clients might follow.

Miss Day was charged with interviewing girls for listing with Joblemann. As Dorothy Clark, she was plaintiff in a suit filed in 1922 against Herbert Rawlinson, motion picture actor. The complaint was dismissed a year later.

SCIENTISTS FIND CLUES IN ROPE

State Investigation Plans Hidden; Names in Diaries Seen Extortion Victims

NEW YORK, March 6.—(AP.)—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's interest in the strangling of Vivian Gordon, vice-graft informant, infused new life into the hunt for her slayers today.

The Governor revealed at Albany that District Attorney Charles B. McLaughlin sent him a report on the case a week ago, adding that he had not requested it. He refused to say whether he would sponsor a state investigation and authorities here were equally reticent concerning his plans.

SCIENTISTS ANALYZE ROPE

Analysis by Columbia University scientists of the rope which was found around Miss Gordon's neck produced new leads. The rope was of the type commonly used for clotheslines, it was found, and the knot was one usually employed in cavalry stables to tie horses. The man who used it was left-handed, exceptionally strong and possibly a Negro, it was theorized.

Aware that Miss Gordon was an enthusiastic horsewoman, the district attorney sent detectives to all riding academies in the hope of uncovering a similar strand of rope or a suspect. Fifteen witnesses were heard by the grand jury, and most of them were eliminated as unimportant.

QUIZ PROMINENT MEN

Some 50 men whose names were found in Miss Gordon's seven diaries, and who, authorities said, were financially and socially prominent, were interviewed privately by the District Attorney's staff.

They were prospective victims of extortion, it was said, and might provide new angles on the woman's life.

Patrolman Andrew B. McLaughlin, against whom Miss Gordon was seeking proof that she had been framed on a vice charge when she was slain, was transferred from the vice squad to patrol duty, supposedly at his own request. He was in Bermuda on vacation when her body was found in Van Cortlandt Park more than a week ago.

7 QUARANTINED STUDENTS GAY

Seven fraternity brothers, quarantined in their Omega Delta house, 425 Neville street, today sent out this stirring message:

"The first round of bridge has been played, the first day's imprisonment is over. We ate with great gusto, slept soundly, enjoyed the radio. This life is not so bad, folks, not so bad."

Brother W. A. George, frat president, was spokesman for the boys this morning. He said:

"We have mapped out duties for all. Brothers, who are studying civil engineering, will ponder Einstein's Relativity Theory. They will measure transverse angles, chart the planets and ascend the ethereal heights.

"I, being a dental student, will use hammer, screw driver, chisel and a brace and bit, to keep the boys teeth in condition."

The Omegas are kept busy answering telephone calls. Scores have phoned. They want to know everything about the boys. The pay station telephone also is used frequently by the marooned students.

Spencer Low, one of the frat prisoners, is doing a nice business. Being a student at the Business Administration School, he laid in a store of cigarets, cigars, candy, soap, as soon as he learned of the quarantine.

The fraternity members, Pitt students, were quarantined yesterday, after one had been taken to the Municipal Hospital, suffering from scarlet fever.

J. V. THOMPSON WED IN 1929

Mrs. Rose Maloney, of 157 South Fairmount avenue, East End, the widow of Thomas J. Maloney, a scrap-iron dealer, who died about three months before the Thompson marriage. Mrs. Thompson's maiden name was Rose Gregg Stillwagon. She is the mother of four daughters and two sons and when she applied for the license in New Cumberland she gave her age as 44.

Since the report of their marriage leaked out a few days ago, some 17 months after the ceremony, Thompson had been strongly denying the truth of the report. Mrs. Thompson, who has been listed in the telephone book as Mrs. Maloney, refused to talk with reporters.

Bradley recognized Thompson as the happy septuagenerian who had slipped into his office with his future bride and applied for a license. Bradley said:

"He was as happy as a school boy when he came in here. I know his married life will be just as happy. I recall the bride as particularly solicitous and tender in her matronly way."

A few minutes after they obtained the license they were married by the Rev. Oresta C. Gross, of the Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Gross recalls:

"Yes, I remember Mr. Thompson—such a kindly old man. He gave me $5. I hope they are happy."

The wedding occurred shortly after Thompson had been arraigned in court for contempt in failing to pay obligations of $300,000 to the estate of Emma Messmore and John Niccolls in Fayette County.

Later Thompson served several days in jail for contempt. These days he spent in the warden's home.

Mrs. Maloney was born in Fayette County and lived in Connellsville.

INQUEST SCORES TAXI COMPANY

The Parmalee Transportation Company was censured severely today by Coroner W. J. McGregor and a jury at the inquest into the death of Iwaldo Pinn, 36, cab driver of 7438 Monticello street, hit and killed by a machine in the Green Cab Company's garage, February 24.

Said the coroner:

"This man's death is the result of absolute indifference to the safety of men working in their garages. Unfortunately the law does not give the coroner an opportunity to hold a corporation for manslaughter."

Percy Davis, Negro, car washer, testified that the accident occurred when his foot slipped from the clutch of the machine he was driving, due to a pair of wet boots. He did not have a driver's license.

A representative of the company said Davis had been forbidden to move cars in the garage.

The jury's vedict read:

Dempsey's Father, 73, To Marry Woman, 37

SALT LAKE CITY, March 6.—(AP.)—Hiram Dempsey, father of Jack Dempsey, former world's heavyweight boxing champion, obtained a license here to marry Mrs. Hannah Lyle Chapman.

He gave his age as 73 and said the present is his third marriage. The bride, a neighbor, gave her age as 37.

BILL OF HEALTH TO WED, URGED

Health certificates for both parties entering into marriage today was adopted by a special committee for recommendation to the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States when it meets here in May.

The recommendation, which will be included in a proposed chapter on "Marriage, Divorce and Remarriage" to take the place of the existing one, "Marriage and Divorce," in the church's constitution, was one of several changes to be proposed.

Among proposals will be an educational program on marriage and a new definition of marriage.

The committee's proposed chapter reaffirms the church's grounds for divorce. All ministers will be urged to exercise care lest they marry parties the church cannot justify.

BUENOS AIRES GREETS WALES

BUENOS AIRES, March 6.—(AP.)—Buenos Aires gave the Prince of Wales and his brother, George, one of the warmest receptions of their career upon their arrival here—but it was the warmth of a broiling sun rather than that of an enthusiastic public manifestation.

Thousands turned out to greet the two princes when they arrived at El Palomar Airdrome from Mar del Plata yesterday afternoon, but the British heir, burned and tired from a ride in an open plane, hurried through the reception and appeared to have antagonized the crowds rather than to have made himself popular with them.

A long round of functions await the two brothers as they prepare for the principal event of their trip — inauguration next Saturday of the British trade exposition here.

The Prince of Wales, shortly after he reached Buenos Aires, called on President Uriburu, who a half hour later returned the call at the British embassy.

PHYSICIAN ALSO ON STAND

Dr. Schildecker Says Late Ambassador Did Not Speak Of Estate Pledge to Him

BULLETIN.

Mrs. Cavit took the stand late this afternoon for the first time and contradicted testimony of Carroll P. Davis, trust officer of the Union Trust Company, and Moore's executor.

Although they had been closely associated with him for years, they never heard either the late Ambassador Alexander P. Moore or his wife, Lillian Russell Moore, mention any pre-nuptial agreement, two witnesses testified today in Orphans Court. They were appearing for defense counsel in the contest of Mrs. Dorothy Russell Calvit to break Moore's will. She is the daughter of Lillian Russell and was left $1,000 of Moore's half-million dollar estate.

PHYSICIAN ON STAND

Dr. C. B. Schildecker, Park Building, said today he had been Moore's personal friend and physician for many years, but had never heard him mention the pre-nuptial agreement.

Mrs. Mildred Martin, of Woodworth street, Moore's niece, and one of the heirs to his estate, said:

"I never heard Alex speak of any agreement. He brought Lillian Russell to me in May, 1911, a year before they were married, and introduced her to me as my future aunt. Never did he talk to me about a pre-nuptial agreement."

IDENTIFIES LETTER

Mrs. Martin identified a letter she wrote to Mrs. Calvit from Spain. The letter read, in part:

"Dot, all I know about your furniture is that it went to a storage company as mine was supposed to. That is the last I ever saw of them. I haven't a thing left. What a fine lot of veggs and oil cans our relations turned out to be. My things were stolen from me like yours. As far as cash is concerned I'm at rock bottom. I am going to try everything, like you. You're the only one I care about."

The letter was written after Lillian Russell Moore had died and their Penn avenue home had been broken up. Moore went to Spain afterwards as ambassador.

Mrs. Martin was hostess at the American embassy in Spain, when Moore was ambassador.

Attorney Herman Pollack, counsel for Mrs. Calvit, cross examined Mrs. Martin. She identified a letter from Lillian Russell to Howard Shelley, then society editor of the New York Evening Journal, in which Lillian wrote she wasn't going to be married. Pollack introduced the letter and news clippings to dispute the defense contention that she had agreed to marry Moore prior to the date of the reported pre-nuptial agreement.

Pupils March Out As School Burns

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 6.—(AP.)—About 350 children were marched safely from their class rooms when grade school at Harrah, 20 miles east of here, caught fire today.

Pupils had just settled in their class rooms when flames swept the two-story brick structure. Fire drills, practiced under the principal, W. C. Jenkins, were credited with preventing a panic at the school. Jenkins and nine teachers led the children to safety.

LOS ANGELES, March 6.—(AP.)—James C. Houdyshell chewed his cut plug contentedly today and his wife, Ethel, had a divorce.

Houdyshell acquired the "eating tobacco" habit five years after they were married, Mrs. Houdyshell yesterday told Superior Judge Robert H. Scott, and when she objected he said he "would not give up his chewing for any woman."

Peru Government Overthrown Again

LIMA, Peru, March 6.—(INS.)—For the fourth time in seven months, Peru's central government today experienced a sudden change of administration. Troops under command of Lieut. Col. The provisional government headed by Dr. Ricardo L. Elias capitulated without a struggle.

Al Jolson, on Stage, Plays in Home Town

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(AP.)—A home-town boy, back where he once sold papers, Al Jolson last night celebrated in Washington his return from the movies. He appeared in "The Wonder Bar," a cabaret show, and told how he got his start on the capital's streets. His father, Rabbi Morris R. Yolson, who was deeply distressed when the son took to the stage, planned to attend the show Saturday.

Alma Rubens, Once Star of Films, Greeted With Jeers at Asylum

Roughly Treated as She Collapsed on Hearing Screams of Mad

By ALMA RUBENS

CHAPTER XXXI.

A key rattled in the lock, the door swung open with a sort of furtive, sly movement and a strange woman came into the room.

The strangest woman I had seen in all my life.

She was short and strong, her lips were thin, her eyes were cruel, and she had a voice exactly like a man's. She walked with a strange, sidling motion, and she had on her thin lips a strange secret smile.

She rattled a huge bunch of keys, strung on a huge steel ring. Keys, brass keys, heavy keys, that punctuated every hour of the day and night with their rattle.

Alma Rubens

Before I had been in Patton 24 hours, the rattle of those keys burned their way into my brain so that I have never forgotten the sound of them.

"So you're Alma Rubens," rasped the strange woman. "Alma Rubens, the movie star. How in the world did you get here?"

So that was the cause of her secret smile, was it?

Well, she shouldn't have had the chance to brag that she had struck Alma Rubens down, and made her a groveling begging coward, the first minute she saw her. I made up my mind to use what little wits I had to protect myself.

Alma Meek

So I answered meekly, and tried my poor best to smile.

The woman unbuckled the heavy belt which bound my arms to my body. She did it roughly, as if she were untying a savage dog.

But I was so relieved to get rid of the heavy belt that I said not one word in protest. The woman grasped me by one arm and led me outside into a long, narrow corridor. I began to tremble from head to foot.

"Where are you taking me," I whispered.

The woman gave my arm a jerk. "Never mind where you're going," she rasped in her coarse voice that was like the voice of a man.

"Just do as you're told, you'll find out soon enough, and there will be plenty of time for you to begin worrying. All the time there is," she said. "all the time there is," and she laughed a strange, secret, grating laugh.

"All the time there is—" that sentence rang in my heart like the toll of a funeral bell.

"All—The—Time — There — Is—" it was like a clock striking somewhere in an empty and forsaken house.

"All—the—time—there—is—" over and over I heard the great clock strike those terrible words.

Time, what was time to me, what did the word mean anyhow, once I knew what it meant. There was time for dancing, time for laughter, time for music, time for good healthy work, time for friends, time for love—all the time there is!

What did the word mean now?

Shriek of Terror

All at once after we had passed through half a dozen wards, locking and unlocking, locking and unlocking as we went—all at once a shriek echoed to the ceiling. A high, wailing, despairing, soul-ripping shriek, that soared to the highest note of the scale, wavered, and then ceased as suddenly as it had begun. I collapsed in a heap on the floor. The woman gave my arm a fierce jerk.

"None of that," she grated. "You aren't before the screen now, you know, none of that play-acting here," and then she rapped on the door of a cell nearby.

She raised her harsh voice, in menace.

"Shut up," she yelled, "or you know what you'll get!"

She jerked my arm again, and I managed to regain my feet, and stumbled on.

I was shaking from head to foot, the cold sweat started from every pore, but I tottered and stumbled on, through half a dozen other long cell-lined rooms. Once in a while from one of the cells, came a monotonous voice chanting some gibberish, over and over, and over and over, but for the most part there was nothing but death-like silence.

Once I looked up and saw through the grating high in the door of a cell a pair of wild eyes, staring at me. The wild eyes closed and opened in a kind of stealthy signal to me, but I staggered on, till finally we reached the receiving ward.

All the way to the ward, I was introduced with sardonic humor, to the attendants.

Faced Ridicule

And the other attendants said what they pleased about me, to my face as if I were dumb and deaf, and blind, as well as what they call crazy.

In the receiving ward the woman snatched the protecting blanket from my shoulders, and then for the first time noticed that I was still clutching in one hand the pitiful half dozen cigarets, remaining in the package that the chauffeur of the ambulance had given me.

The woman snatched the cigarets from my hand.

"I'll just take these," she said, "you won't need them here."

"Oh can't I smokke," I ventured.

"You heard me," snapped the woman. And then they took me and threw me into a brown metal bath tub, none too clean and gave me what they called a bath.

I never had a bath like that before and I hope I shall never have a bath like that again.

Prisoner!

"I ANSWERED MEEKLY"

Texas Flat, Voliva's Right

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Well, he's right about most of Texas. There's one state that's so flat they have to use bird dogs to retrieve dice. They roll right into the next county. An ordinary Saratoga trunk is visible for 300 miles.

Maybe the world is flat and maybe it's round. But why should we poke our nose in other people's business?

But don't tell us that Columbus wasted a perfectly good egg even at 1492 prices.

Georgia's cornpone and potlikker controversy has spilled all over the tablecloth of the universe.

The question is whether you should crumble your cornpone into the potlikker or dunk it.

Dunking is the gentle art of dipping the beard in the gravy.

After having dipped the beard you run it through a clothes-wringer. It's good to the last drop.

Of course, dunking started with Queen Elizabeth dipping a lady finger into a thimble of Ambrosia. We don't know what ambrosia is—but what difference does that make since the Supreme Court reversed Judge Clark's decision?

The Elizabethan manner of dunking was ethical and artistic. It looked well and queenly in oil painting.

Gainsborough made two famous paintings around this time. One was The Blue Boy and the other was the famous duchess with her hat so far on the side of her head that it looked as if she kept it on by the vacuum system.

The Blue Boy was not originally intended to be all blue. He had fallen into a vat of blueberry wine and he was overdunked.

The duchess had her hat on the side because it interfered with swigging her potlikker. She believed in taking the bull by the horns and the loving cup by both handles.

Jack Horner was the first thumb-dunker of history. He was a plum addict. He liked his potlikker raw and undiluted.

We have had potlikker in Georgia. It is the broth left by beet tops, turnip tops and other greens boiled in water. It violates no laws. That is, it fractured no amendments when we were in Georgia. Can it be possible that the boys have figured out a new subterranean recipe for two-family cellars?

The crumbling school advocates breaking up the cornpone and letting the chips fall where they may.

We favor the dunking school. We hope the dunking school gets rich endowments and becomes a college. There is some satisfaction in plunging a loaf of bread into the gravy and swoshing around in the nutritious tides. It is not only a tonic, but you can always send your clothes to the cleaner's.

NEEDY LEAD VET LOAN SEEKERS

Needy ex-soldiers seeking loans on the adjusted compensation certificates represent more than 90 per cent of the first 36,000 applications received at the United States Veterans' Bureau regional office, it was revealed today by Manager Michael J. Shortley.

With a decrease in applications being received, Shortley reported there was an increase in the number of applications from veterans seeking loans for the first time. More than 2,000 certificates had been deposited yesterday and today with first loan applications.

OFFICE OPEN DAILY

The centrally located Sun-Telegraph downtown office, Fifth avenue and Market street, where the Allegheny County executive committee of the American Legion is giving information and assisting veterans prepare loan applications, today reported continued increase in the number of first loans being sought. This office, under direction of Service Officer Clyde Hartzell, is open daily from 9 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. for loan information.

Charles R. Haley, in charge of the Veterans of Foreign Wars service bureau at 314 Plaza Building, made the same report. This office is open daily from 8:30 a. m. to 8 p. m. There is no charge for aid.

Shortley's office reported a steady increase in the number of checks being mailed daily. However, the regional manager declared staff operations were hampered by unnecessary telephone calls, personal visits and mail communications from veterans seeking to learn when their checks will be issued.

WORK HINDERED

Shortley said:

"Every minute lost answering telephones, replying to letters or attending to visitors means interruption to the steady routine of recording applications and preparing checks. The needy men should be grateful for the apparent consideration given by veterans not needing money at once, who delayed sending in their applications during the irst rush. To assist their own cases further, loan seekers should not hinder the work."

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph has not slackened its co-operation to American Legion and V. F. W. post headquarters in handling application for the veterans' bureau. When a shortage of application forms threatened the local regional office the newspaper printed 10,000 blanks. Delivery of supplies to neighborhood headquarters of veteran posts has been only a part of the assistance offered the organizations, in keeping with the service rendered by Hearst newspapers throughout the country.

BONUS LOANS BENEFIT SEEN

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(INS.)—Despite the government's temporary scarcity of funds derived from ordinary receipts, some officials declared today that in the long run it will be a distinct advantage to the treasury to make loans of about $1,000,000,000 to veterans during 1931.

Results of subscriptions to the $1,400,000,000 offering of bonds, and certificates at rates of 1½, 2 and 3⅜ per cent, made public by Secretary Mellon, showed that the market absorbed this large volume of securities without difficulty. A total of $3,734,000,000 was subscribed and the rates on the combined issue were the cheapest money the treasury has ever borrowed on a major financing issue.

Drummond Expected To Quit League Post

GENEVA, March 6.—(Universal.)—Early retirement of Sir Eric Drummond, British secretary-general of the League of Nations, is foreseen as a result of recommendations by a committee studying reorganization of the League's staff.

Drummond's resignation was virtually called for by the committee, headed by Count Bernstorff, former German ambassador to Washington.

How to Get Bonus Loans

Veterans can obtain bonus loan application forms, information and assistance in filling out blanks from the Veterans' Bureau Regional Office, 5118 Penn avenue (telephone number, Montrose 7381), but it is suggested that in order to speed work applicants apply to the Sun-Telegraph downtown office, Fifth avenue and Market street; Veterans of Foreign Wars Bureau, 314 Plaza Building; "40-8" Society, 403 McCance Build, Smithfield street and Liberty avenue; the American Red Cross, Chamber of Commerce Building, or neighborhood post headquarters of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legion.

Following are steps to be taken by ex-soldiers seeking loans:

1. Go in person or write for a "Veteran's Note," form 1185 of the Veterans' Bureau, from any of the agencies listed above. Mention if a previous loan had been obtained and where.

2. Sign the note and insert the number of your adjusted service certificate and home address in spaces indicated.

3. Have the "Certificate of Identification" on the note executed by a Postmaster, an officer of a veterans' organization or a notary public. This action is unnecessary if there has been a previous loan.

4. Hand or forward by registered mail the note to the Regional Veterans' Bureau office. Mailing is urged as the quickest method. If the application is for the first loan ever sought, note must be accompanied by the bonus certificate as collateral security. If previous loans have been granted, the bureau continues to retain the certificate, and application must be made either to the regional office which granted the previous loan or to the Central Office, Veterans' Bureau in Washington.

5. Needy veterans will receive their checks earlier if more fortunate comrades delay their applications a little.

CAROL CARRIES AID TO NEEDY

BUCHAREST, March 6 (Universal).—King Carol II has taken a page out of the life of Caliph Haroun Al Raschid. The King, although scorning the disguise of a mendicant, caught Bucharest by surprise when he went into the streets to find out the truth about the poor and lobless.

The King, with his secretary, visited a police station and the desk sergeant, not recognizing the monarch, brusquely directed him to the captain. The captain almost fell over, backward saluting Carol. Carol inspected the jails, listened to a few magisterial cases, and asked that leniency be practiced. He made the same recommendation to the tax collector.

3 DAMAGE SUITS ASK $70,000

Two suits against the City of Pittsburgh, in each of which a woman seeks to recover $25,000 for injuries in boardwalk falls, were filed in Common Pleas Court. Annetta Gormley, of Brookline, alleged she stepped into a hole in a boardwalk on Queensboro avenue near Fordham street August 30 and sustained spinal and other injuries in a fall. Mrs. Blanche Volkwein, of Mt. Washington, claimed she suffered injuries to her ankle and shoulder in a fall caused by stepping on a rotten plank in a boardwalk in front of 240 Seward street, Mt. Washington, October 15 last. Her husband, Harry J. Volkwein, joined in the suit.

Claiming serious injuries due to an explosive charge in road-building, Chester L. James, of Glenshaw, asked $20,000 damages from Michael Volpe, contractor, of Allison Park, in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court. Volpe was engaged in building a stretch of state highway No. 8 north of Mt. Royal January last and James, walking around the section by a detour was struck by a rock hurled by a blast set off without warning, breaking his leg in two places, according to the suit.

TAKE APPEALS IN COUNTY TAX

Only 28 property owners of the First, Third and Fifth Wards appealed from the triennial assessment, on which county taxes are based, at hearings before the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes.

George J. Schad, chairman of the board, said that there were fewer appeals this year than at any time during his 10 years' experience on the board. Approximately 200 appeals have been made since January 12 by property owners of the 62 townships, 67 boroughs and three third-class cities.

Chairman Schad said:

"No general increase in assessments has been made in any district in Allegheny County this year. We feel that conditions do not warrant any increase in assessments at this time."

Appeals on assessments in the Sixth, Seventh and Ninth Wards will be heard today.

Pope Recommends Christian Humility

VATICAN CITY, March 6.—(INS.)—Pope Pius XI, in a letter today to Bishop Dallacosta, of Padova, regarding celebration of the seventh centenary of St. Anthony, declared:

"Christian humility does not imply weakness of character. On the contrary, it proves a soul of fortitude when it is necessary to defend the rights of God, Church and Pope, unjustly violated."

ADDITIONAL RADIO NEWS

The Loudspeaker

—By LOUIS REID—

NEW YORK, March 6.—Not only are screen stars greeting the easy chairs of the nation, but the tunesmiths who went Hollywood are crowding closer and closer to the microphone.

Of late the screen stars are expanding their radio activities to something more than the salutation, "Hello everybody, I'm so glad to be here with you today," and, as a result, are winning larger audiences. They appear to be more alert to the publicity values of the radio.

The tunesmiths long ago were alert. They come regularly to the loudspeakers with bulging portfolios, paying tribute to Mammy, to Baby, to Sweetie—and three goddesses of the song-shops.

Since the American Academy of Arts and Letters took official notice of radio, "dignity, accuracy, dignity," has become the watchword of the microphones.... The most melancholy sound to have penetrated these ears on the loudspeakers was the playing of "Ase's death" by an orchestra of theremins.....Wonder how theremins are selling?.....The gayest sound heard by these ears in the last month was the playing by Percy Grainger of his own "Country Dances" on the piano. .....Wonder how pianos are selling?.....That lugubrious chant, "Danny Deever," is seldom given an airing.

Were you to track down the records of the broadcasters you probably would find that no song written in the last 100 years has been omitted from the microphone. The songs of Gilbert and Sullivan would be found in the lead, followed closely by those of Stephen Foster and Victor Herbert..... They say George Gershwin will collect $125,000 in writing songs for the singing celluloid..... Gershwin does not seem to be concerned as formerly in exhibiting jazz in high hat and spats. He may have become discouraged by the public's preference for jazz in flappy trousers and a soft shirt.

The weekly radio warbling of Maurice Chevalier is being increased. Unlike Bordoni, M. Chevalier turns ever a cold shoulder to numbers glorifying zose eyes, zose lips of ma cherie. . . . With the aid of the broadcasters Bordoni is shortly to add to her bank deposits . . . More music is being heard in morning programs.. It was about time . . . Two of the zippiest morning musical programs are those of the Landt Trio and White and the Soup Band . . . The networks are still unalert to the news interest of the prohibition controversy. No place is yet found for prohibition debates—good, hot, cantankerous, name-calling debates.

* * *

J. B. Priestley's definition of a typical American—"hardboiled outside, sentimental inside"—has special application to songwriters. All of them are hardboiled outside, but inside their very hearts are breaking. Right now they are weeping unrestrainedly over that inevitable period "when your hair has turned to silver" . . . Brass bands are now polishing up their horns for the radio. Nothing so adds to the making of a home in springtime as a good band . . . Whatever became of the Six Brown Brothers? Masters of the saxophone, radio seems to have passed them by.

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

A ROUND BY ROUND description of the King Levinsky-Tuffy Griffiths fight at the Stadium in Chicago, is to be broadcast by KDKA at 11:15 tonight, direct from the ringside.

Arthur Murray, famous dancing instructor, has named one of his steps the "Pittsburgh Breakaway" and introduces his creation to KDKA listeners at 8:45 tonight.

1. Step with left foot directly to left.
2. Draw right foot up to left.
3. Step with left foot directly to left.
4. Place right foot behind left.
5. Keep going.

Try this new step in your own home absolutely free. Let us know if you think it's okay for Pittsburgh.

DO YOU KNOW—

THAT the "boom" of a photographer's flash went out over KQV the other day and the telephone line was tied up for an hour with inquiries about a downtown explosion?

THAT rugs in the WABC studio have a two-inch pile to diminish room reverberation?

THAT Allen Meaney, "Musical Doctor" of WOR, answers his fan mail on an exact duplicate of a doctor's prescription blank?

THAT Bill Steinke, of "Jolly Bill and Jane," has a weight that increases with his popularity? He now tips the scale at 240.

THAT only 20 words of blah-blah are to be used to introduce Arthur Pryor and his band when they play over WABC-WJAS starting Monday, March 16?

THAT Maj. Bowes and his Capitol Family do their first Friday night broadcast over WEAF at 7 tonight? Artists include Westell Gordon, Louise Bave, Hannah Klein and Dudley Wilkinson.

THAT James J. Corbett is to talk about fights and fighters over WJAS starting next Wednesday at 6:30?

THAT the programs broadcast from Washington over the two networks in 1930 would, if presented consecutively 24 hours a day, furnish entertainment, education and inspiration for a month?

THAT Aileen Stanley is booked to sing over WTAM at 6 o'clock tonight?

THAT Ralph Allen (WTAM at 9) is the great grandson of Chief White Eagle of the Pawnee Tribe and some day will head this Indian group? An all-Indian concert is scheduled tonight in his honor.

THAT New Weaver and Elsie Hitz play "Jane" and "Bob" in the "Talkie Series?" Many say they sound like Mary and Bob.

Who Does the Running?

When you're in a hurry and haven't the time to sit around and wait, who does the running, you or the hot water? Must you run downstairs and heat a kettlefull to do in the pinch and then spend the rest of the day making excuses to all the family, for the things you said (but didn't mean) while you were impatiently waiting for that kettle to boil?

Certainly not a very pleasant way to start the day or the evening.

STOP BAD BREATH

Thousands of people afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets act gently but truly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after-effects.

BUT she never told them why. For years her skin was dull and sallow. Pimples, blotches and blemishes caused by constipation marred her chance of beauty. But not any more.

Tiny calcium wafers worked their wonders for her. Gentle internal cleansers—they quickly help to remove the cause: intestinal stasis and poisonous wastes that dull the eye, blotch the skin and stupefy the mind and personality.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Nancy Bell Brown Weds Thomas E. Diehl in Southland Home

We have some wedding news today, news of the wedding of Nancy Bell Brown, daughter of the Norman F. Browns, of Amberson avenue, and Thomas E. Diehl, son of the Ambrose Nevin Diehls, of Pittsburgh and New York.

After all, the wedding took place in St. Petersburg, Fla., where the Browns have a winter home. I'm sure you'll recall that after the bride had decided upon a southern wedding the plans were changed, and a Pittsburgh wedding was to have been arranged.

The ceremony took place yesterday at 5 o'clock in the afternoon in the Brown winter home, with the Rev. Dr. W. F. Conner, of Pittsburgh, officiating according to the original wedding plans.

The bride had as her attendants her sister, Mrs. Sidney Binns, and Joan Diehl, sister of the bridegroom. James D. Bever, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, was best man.

After a wedding dinner for members of the family, the Diehls left for Pittsburgh for a visit, and will later go to California to make their home.

A few years ago the lenten season was always a drab, relentless season, during which parties were frowned upon. But this season there have been quite a number of bright spots, benefits, the theaters, and grand operas.

Support Opera

The opera, "The Flying Dutchman," tomorrow night in Syria Mosque will be another attraction.

I have already told you a number of patronesses for the opera, and today I can tell you a few additional boxholders and patronesses. But first I want to mention that the grand opera company will go to New York for a week's engagement after leaving here, and then will return to Germany for the spring festivals.

LONGER LIFE FOR SILK HOSE

To find a way to make silk hose and undergarments wear longer means money in women's pockets. A New York fashion expert has discovered the secret.

She found that washing with soap and water alone did not remove the body excretions which rot silks. So she adds a tablespoonful of Energine to every quart of lukewarm, soapy water. Then she washes and rinses the articles—as usual. The result is a new cleanliness—a pleasing freshness—revived colors—all with practically no rubbing.

But the most amazing result is the longer life it gives to silks—an economy every woman will appreciate.

Try this method the next time you wash silks. You'll be delighted. Remember, too, that millions of women save money by using Energine for removal of spots from suits, hats, dresses, gloves, shoes, etc. Large can 35 cents at any drug store.

EARNED INCOME GRANTED TAX CREDIT

Deduction of 25 Per Cent Allowed on Compensation For Personal Services

This is the fifth of a series of articles on the most common problems of income tax.

The great majority of income tax payers, in addition to the personal exemption of $3,500 for married persons or heads of families, $1,500 for single persons and $400 for each dependent, are entitled to a further credit of 25 per cent of the tax on the full amount of their earned income.

Earned income consists of wages, salaries, professional fees and other amounts received as direct compensation for personal services. For tax purposes all net income up to $5,000 is considered earned income. When it is recalled that about 3,000,000 of the 4,000,000 income tax returns filed each year show earnings between $3,000 and $5,000, the importance of this saving becomes readily apparent.

A taxpayer with a salary of $4,000 who made $1,000 on a real estate transaction would, after deducting his personal exemption, compute 1½ per cent of the remainder as his tax. Then he would be entitled to deduct 25 per cent from this.

A taxpayer with a $4,000 salary who made $4,000 more on a real estate transaction would report total income of $8,000. From this he would deduct his personal exemption of $3,500 if he is a married man. The taxable balance would be $4,500. His tax would be 1½ per cent of the first $4,000, or $60, and 3 per cent of the remaining $500, or $15, making a total tax of $75.

But of the $8,000 net income, $5,000 would be considered as earned net income. From this $8,000 he would deduct his $3,500 of personal exemption. The tax on the remaining $1,500 at 1½ per cent would amount to $22.50. He would be entitled to deduct one-fourth of this, or $5.63, from $75, leaving a net payable tax of $69.37.

DAVIS INDORSES JOB RELIEF HERE

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

William Pfarr

Thoughts of a non-thinker: Sammy Walsh, Eddie Klein's favorite master of ceremonies, is on the same bill with Helen Morgan (she sits on pianos) at a night club in Hollywood, Fla. . . . Speaking of masters of ceremonies, as we seldom do, one of them quit his downtown job in a huff because his brother had to pay the cover charge . . . The cabaret racket hasn't made a dime in Pittsburgh in the last two months, they say . . . And the prospects for the summer roadhouse business are terrible . . . One spot close to town is rolling in wealth because all the girls have heard bad reports about it and they're anxious to see the place . . . And when they do they're disappointed, as they should be . . .

Where in the world were Mike Muldowney and Harry Little, the usually prompt councilmen, during all the early voting on the Succop case? . . .The big-shot racketeers of the town are laughing at the talk that "Pittsburgh Hymie" Martin used to be a big shot in the racket here. . .A spy reports that the local draught beer's been good for two months and probably will be better this summer, although most of that bottled stuff, which peddles for 75 cents, is just the draught in bottles. . .

A speakeasy man who recently did a short stretch is finding it tough to get back into the racket because he owes the booze peddlers big bills. . .And one joint, so they say, has cut the pint price to $4.50, so there's a chance, but very slight, that those who drink it will soon enjoy a price-cutting war.

Answering a question that everybody seems to be asking: The Gulf Building will be taller, but not bigger than its neighbor, the Koppers . . . And the worst joke of the decade is that of the pseudo-wag who predicts he'll shoot golf in one and coppers in the other . . . Well, anyhow, Mayor Kline is still the best-dressed Mayor . . .

Norman Lofink is only 15, but he knows how to get around . . . The boy dropped a nickel into the telephone box at Motor Square during the food show, and then remembered it was a nickel that collectors paid pretty good money for . . . So he called up the telephone company, and the telephone company sent out a man who opened the box and gave Norman back the nickel . . . And maybe Mr. Bradford, the head man of the telephones, won't like that ad . . . Although the telephone company still owes us a nickel for a call we made six months ago . . .

The title of a song they sang at the Welsh banquet Saturday night was "O Na Byddai'n Haf O Hyd," and translated it means simply, "O 'Twere Summer for Aye," according to Bob Davis, the recorder of the American Gorsedd. . . . . Suggestion to short-story writers: Write the story of Vic Faust, "From the Allegheny River to Broadway . . . But". . . . .

Among the interested spectators at the five-alarm box-factory fire on the Bluff the other day were Mayor Kline and the missus . . . And a good slogan for the city's Bureau of Supplies might be "Caviar Emptor". . . . . .

VOTE OFFICERS' SENTENCES SUSPENDED

Four Who Pleaded Guilty To Conspiracy Escape Terms; Five on Trial

The prosecution of election cases moved forward in Criminal Court today.

Four members of the board in the Twenty-first District of the Fourth Ward who last week pleaded guilty to conspiracy were given suspended sentences today by Judge George V. Moore.

In another courtroom the prosecution rested in the case against five members of the board in the Fifteenth District of the Sixth Ward.

KEPT OFF BOARDS

The Fourth Warders who won suspended sentences were Max Adler, John E. Casey, Pat Higgins and Joseph B. Kelly. The sentences were for 60 days and Judge Moore ruled that they not serve on election boards for five years.

As Assistant District Attorney Roy T. Clunk rested his case against the Sixth Ward board—Robert Drzewiecki, Stanley Zbikowski, Frank J. Skibo, Frank Szoszoiek, Joseph Bentz—the defense opened with a general denial of charges of conspiracy to return a false county. County Detective David Drexler testified of defective, mutilated and erased ballots by which Pinchot lost votes. Alderman Luke Sullivan, a prosecution witness, told of turning the ballot box over to the County Commissioners.

SENTENCES SUSPENDED

Yesterday the board of the Ninth District, Second Ward, pleaded guilty. Peter Dimirach, judge of elections, admitted marking 34 ballots. Judge Moore sentenced him to 60 days in jail, then suspended sentence. The others also received suspended sentences of 30 or 60 days. They were Walter Gallagher, Edward Rovenski, John Ejzak and Regis Hoag.

MY EXPERIENCES IN THE WORLD WAR

By JOHN J. PERSHING

Commander-in-Chief, American Expeditionary Forces

Succeeding chapters of "My Experiences in the World War" will appear daily and Sunday exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph.

CHAPTER LIV.

American participation in the second Marne offensive which began July 18, 1918, and turned the tide of war in favor of the Allies, was not limited to the operations of the 1st and 2d Divisions. While this bitter contest was being waged for the possession of the crucial point near Soissons the troops around the rim of the salient had been steadily driving ahead.

The 4th Division (Cameron), less its artillery, fought at first with the French. The 7th Brigade was attached to the 2d Corps, French 6th Army, the 47th Infantry in reserve, and the 39th assigned to the French 33d Division.

In the attack of July 18 this regiment cleaned up the wood in its front, captured Noroy, and extended the line to the south. On the 19th the regiment went forward about two and one-half miles on a front of 1,000 yards north of the Ourcq. It was relieved the morning of the 20th and went to the reserve.

Gen. Pershing

The Eighth Brigade was assigned to the French 164th Division the 59th Regiment in reserve. In the attack of the 18th the 58th Regiment assisted in the capture of Hauteyesnes and Courchamps, took Chevillon and made further substantial gains.

The 59th Regiment was put in the front line during the night of July 18-19, relieving the 58th, and on the 19th, advancing with the division, gained two miles. On the 20th, with two battalions of the 59th in line, the advance was carried well to the east of Sommelans. The brigade was relieved from the front line July 21.

Coincident with these advances on the 18th, the First Corps (Liggett), serving with the French Sixth Army and composed of our 26th Division and the French 167th Division, also became a part of the movement. The 26th Division occupied the line it had taken over from the 2nd Division July 10.

Stopped Several Times

The plan for the July 18 offensive contemplated a deep penetration south of Soissons by the French Tenth Army, supported on the right by the French Sixth Army, extending the attack as far south as Bouresches.

The 52d Brigade, 26th Division, captured the villages of Torcy and Belleau, and one battalion reached the base of the dominating Hill 193. Elements of the brigade reached the railroad, but severe flank fire drove them to the starting point.

On the 19th the advance of the 26th was contingent upon the success of the French 167th Division on its left, but that division failed to take its objectives and the 26th did not attack.

On the 20th the 167th was held up again, exposing the left of the division to heavy flank fire and preventing more than a slight gain. Farther to the right the 26th succeeded in taking Gonetrie Farm, and got a foothold on Hill 190.

When the attack began on the 21st it was found that the Germans had withdrawn the night before, and the 26th moved forward with little or no opposition until it reached the new German line at l'Hermitage-Epieds-Mont St. Pere, east of the Soissons-Chateau Thierry highway.

On the 22d it captured Trugny and got a foothold in Epieds, but was forced by a strong German counter-attack to retire to Bretuil Wood. The 52d Brigade was also driven back to its starting point.

The attack renewed on the 23d was successful, one regiment reaching the Epieds-Mont St. Pere road, but in the afternoon it was forced to retire. That night the 52d Brigade was replaced by the 56th Brigade, 28th Division.

Gain Much Territory

When the latter launched its attack the morning of the 24th, it was found that the enemy had withdrawn and he was not again encountered until the pursuers, including part of the 51st Brigade, 26th Division, reached Croix Rouge Farm.

During its offensive action beginning with the 18th, the 26th Division had progressed nearly 11 miles and had captured 250 prisoners and four pieces of artillery. Since its occupation of the sector July 10 it had suffered about 5,000 casualties.

The division was relieved, together with the 56th Brigade, 28th Division by the 84th Brigade, 42d Division, which took over the sector on the 25th. The 84th Brigade, 42d Division, replaced two French divisions which were pinched out by the shortening of the line.

On the 27th, the 42d Division

Shot Unloading Revolver, Man Dies

Joseph Deleo, 36, of 7433 Susquehanna street, died today in the Pittsburgh Hospital from a bullet wound in the abdomen suffered accidentally in his home, early Tuesday. He was trying to remove a cartridge from a revolver chamber with a butcher knife when the weapon was discharged, he told police.

SUSPECT HELD IN FATAL ROBBERY

Prisoner Suffered Two Bullet Wounds in Leg; Gasoline Salesman Is Killed.

Jack A. Schulkins, 31, of 7819½ Hamilton avenue, was under arrest today as a suspect in the killing of William A. McClintock, 35, attendant in the R. H. Schmitt Company garage at 7827 Hamilton avenue, who was fatally shot by the holdup man who robbed him of 70 cents two weeks ago.

Suffering from two bullet wounds, Schulkins was arrested last night by state troopers in a cabin at Spruce Creek, near Altoona, on a tip supplied by Pittsburgh detectives.

SHOT IN LEGS

The bullet wounds, one in each of Schulkins' thighs, were inflicted by McClintock in the gun battle which followed the holdup, detectives believe. The wounds were amateurishly dressed, and in Schulkins' pockets was found more dressing.

Mr. Schulkins

McClintock was alone in the garage, which is just a few doors from Schulkins' home, on the night of February 22, when the gunman entered.

After he had robbed McClintock of 70 cents the gunman sped away in an auto. McClintock gave chase. A few blocks distant the fugitive's auto crashed into a pole and hurled him to the street. McClintock and the robber exchanged fire. McClintock was fatally wounded and, on his deathbed, told detectives he believed he had hit the gunman.

DECLINES TO TALK

Schulkins declined to talk, detectives reported.

With Schulkins' arrest detectives released James Davis, 31, who has been held since March 1. Davis finally admitted having ordered a gun for Schulkins, but explained he did not know that it might be used in crime.

STUDENTS HOLD MOCK TRIAL

No verdict was returned in the case of Martin versus Conway after a legal battle which lasted three and a half hours in the City-County Building last night.

It was the mock trial presented by the schools of law and pharmacy of Duquesne University. When a juror called attention of the court to the lateness of the hour by asking to be excused and beating a hasty exit from the room, it was unanimously decided that there would be no verdict returned.

Vice Dean John E. Laughlin, of the Duquesne University law school, acted as judge.

Attorneys prosecuting the case were Joseph A. Cirillo, of Penn State, and Joseph Ferraro, of Duquesne University. Attorneys for the defense were Christopher Winters and Maurice Snyder.

A story centering about the death of an 11-month-old baby caused by negligence upon the part of a druggist's assistant who later was acquitted of a manslaughter charge formed the basis for the trial. The druggist was being sued by the parents of the child for $50,000 damages.

Gas Line Dispute Hearing Planned

CITES DUAL BENEFIT OF PLAN

Senator Sees Unemployment, Charity Problems Solved; Stuart Heads Committee

Indorsement of the Pittsburgh plan for stabilization of employment as promoted by the Allegheny County Emergency Association has been given by United States Senator James J. Davis. He characterized the plan as a "double-edged sword that cuts the dual knot of unemployment and charitable problems."

His telegram to the local association reads:

"I congratulate the Allegheny County Emergency Association, together with the people and industrial interests of the Pittsburgh district, for the practical manner in which you are solving the unemployment problems by creating jobs for those in dire need under the program which is known as the Pittsburgh Plan. This plan is a double-edged sword that cuts the dual knot of unemployment and charitable problems."

Maj. Philip Mathews, executive director of the association, has announced that James Lyall Stuart, former state highway commissioner, has accepted chairmanship of the employment committee, which includes John F. Casey, Sr., vice chairman; J. D. Beatty, J. B. Kelly, N. V. B. Zeigler and John F. Casey, Jr. This committee will handle negotiations between the emergency association and the municipalities in planning public works and placing men on the jobs.

R. B. Mellon, general chairman of the association finance committee, yesterday announced the members of B group, which will continue the solicitation of corporations and other employers for contributions. The A group, of which A. L. Humphrey, president

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., March 6.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

We finally found how to keep from calling an extra session of Congress — appropriate all the money at the last one.

Will Rogers

That little fellow Einstein has sailed away for Germany. And we sure do miss him in California. The radios, the banquet tables, and the weeklies will never seem the same. He come here for a rest and seclusion. He ate with everybody, talked with everybody, posed for everybody that had any film left, attended every luncheon, every dinner, every movie opening, every marriage, and two-thirds of the divorces. In fact he made himself such a good fellow that nobody had the nerve to ask him what his theory was.

Yours, WILL.

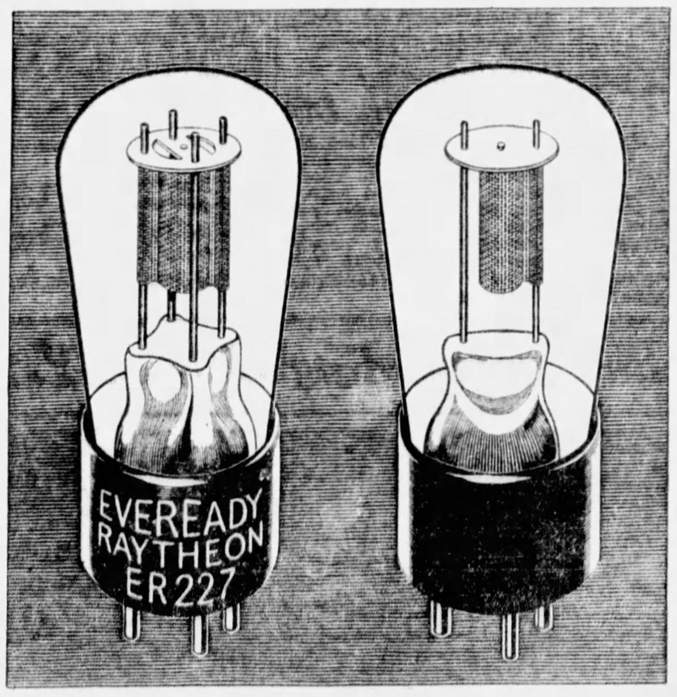
New beauty of tone, new enjoyment, a new thrill . . . and a radio tube of new design that makes all these things possible



THE NEW

Notice the four strong pillars. With this solid foundation, the many fragile parts in the tube can be assembled with watch-making accuracy, and cannot move a hair's breadth from their fixed position! They are always poised for performance, like the strings of a fine piano, tuned for a concert!

THE OLD

In ordinary tubes, the many delicate parts have only a two-legged foundation — like the goal-posts on a football field. Two supports instead of four! Jolts, bumps, vibration from dynamic speakers — all can impair their vital accuracy. And that means uncertain results . . . unreliable reception.

The radio service-man, who keeps your set in repair, is a technical expert . . . he knows tubes! He can explain the value of the 4-pillar principle, and demonstrate it, in your own radio set.

WITH a complete set of 4-pillar tubes in your radio, the difference is startling . . . clearer, more natural tone, greater power, fewer disturbing noises, quicker action when you snap the switch . . . all of these are reported by users everywhere. And the reason lies in the patented, exclusive 4-pillar construction of Eveready Raytheon Tubes.

Four-pillar tubes have four strong supports anchoring their elements in place. Ordinary tubes have two. The elements are fragile, but they are the electrical mechanism of the tube. Their accuracy and stability determines the quality of your radio reception.

In 4-pillar tubes, these precision-built elements have a solid, rigid foundation . . . four strong pillars, one at each corner of a square. Making Eveready Raytheons twice as strong, twice as durable, twice as resistant to jolts and shocks . . . able to withstand the bumps and knocks of shipment, and immune to the racking vibration of dynamic speakers. Because they are better structurally, they give truer reproduction, superior performance!

Free Home Demonstration

Words can't adequately describe what four pillars mean to a tube, or what 4-pillar tubes will do for a radio . . . you must actually hear the difference, in your own set, at home. No test with electrical apparatus in a dealer's store can tell you fully how tubes will sound.

National Carbon Company, Inc., has arranged with its dealers to demonstrate these tubes to you free. Just call the nearest Eveready Raytheon dealer, and ask for the free home demonstration with 4-pillar tubes. Not just one tube, but a complete set. Then you will learn how fine your radio can be. If your present tubes are a year or more old, you can't afford to miss this opportunity.

METHODS BAN HONOR SYSTEM

Twenty-three delegates to the Mid-Western Student Conference at Carnegie Institute of Technology today concluded they did not think the honor system of examinations would work with the present system of grading in colleges.

C. E. Christian, of Penn State, chairman of today's discussion group, said:

"These reason students 'crib' is that they are after higher marks, because the higher the marks the better will be their scholastic standing. Whereas, if they just had a 'pass' or a 'fail' mark to earn at examinations, they wouldn't stoop to 'cribbing' to get that extra mark."

The group voted that their sympathies should be put into the form of a resolution. The final session of the conference will be held Saturday.

Shadyside Church To Honor Wilson

E. Graham Wilson, of Philadelphia, general secretary of the Presbyterian Board of National Missions, will be honor guest at a luncheon tendered by the Men's Club of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church Thursday in the Fort Pitt Hotel. The honored guest will be welcomed by the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, pastor of the church and moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church.

MAYOR, EMPLOYES DONATE

Mayor Charles H. Kline and employes of the Pittsburgh city government yesterday donated a total of $510.11 to the employment fund of the Emergency Association. Members of the Mayor's department each contributed a day's pay, Mayor Kline heading the list with $41, his daily stipend. The contribution was donated as follows: Mayor's office, $115; Morals Court, $31; magistrates, $61.01; Traffic Court, $91.20; Bureau of Horses, $14.90, and municipal garage, $197.

The association also received a check for $181.50 from J. W. Gray, chairman of the Board of Water Assessors, representing one day's pay from each employe of the bureau.

CHECK FROM BEAVER FALLS

The dramatic sketch recently broadcast by the association stirred the interest of George L. Sawer, of Beaver Falls, who sent his check for $3 "to help the good work along."

An outline of the Pittsburgh Plan, with any suggestions for the modification to meet the needs of a smaller community, has been requested by Dorsey B. Potter, of Clarksburg, W. Va.

Dollar Savings Bank Not in Consolidation

Officials of the Dollar Savings Bank, 338 Fourth avenue, today called attention to the fact that they are not involved in a bank merger announced yesterday. It is the Dollar Savings and Trust Company, of 524 Federal street, they pointed out, that yesterday was taken over by the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company.

In one edition of the Sun-Telegraph yesterday the names of the two banks were confused. The Dollar Savings Bank is an independent institution owned by its depositors and does not contemplate merging with any other banking institution.

Train Wreck Plot Laid to Boys' Lark

STOCKTON, N. J., March 6.—(AP.)—After hours of investigation, authorities favored a theory that an attempt to wreck two Stroudsburg-to-Philadelphia trains was the work of boys out for a lark. They believe the would-be wreckers stole dynamite, placed it on the track in an amateurish way, then pushed two boulders onto the rails and tried unsuccessfully to throw a switch.

One train exploded the dynamite and escaped with a slightly bent pilot. The second train pushed the rocks aside.

Baby's Brief Life Wins Widow Estate

LINCOLN, Neb., March 6.—(AP.)—Because a baby's heart beat, although the child never breathed, Mrs. Pauline Stuertz is to receive all her husband's estate—$20,000 in damages against a construction firm in whose employ he was killed. A state law is that a widow who has not been the mother of a living child is entitled to only half her husband's estate. The man's parents sought half of it. A court held that since the baby's heart beat 20 minutes it lived.

Gets Divorce Papers At Bishop's Funeral

PHILADELPHIA, March 6.—(AP.)—As he entered Holy Trinity Church here yesterday to attend the funeral of Bishop Thomas J. Garland, the Rev. Camille Estornelle, rector of St. John's Protestant Episcopal Church, Camden, N. J., was served with a summons in divorce proceedings. The papers were served for Mrs. Florence Estornelle, who charged him with cruelty. The clergyman also has started a suit charging his wife with desertion.

Cheese Just as Beneficial For Body as Meat

If eaten early in the day and in combination with the proper foods cheese is digestible and also a highly valuable food.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
Former Health Commissioner of New York City, United States Senator From New York

Cheese is not the indigestible substance it has been pictured. Its bad name has come from bad company it has kept. In this respect it is like old dog Tray.

If cheese is dragged into an after-theater supper and taken with champagne, cocktails or highballs it will get the name it does not deserve. If a large portion of cheese is crowded into a stomach already overful from a 10-course dinner, it will help to make you feel miserable.

Cheese is rich in protein, the same material which makes up the substance of meat. It is just as useful as meat and accomplishes for the body almost exactly what meat does.

If this is true, you can see that meat and an equal quantity of cheese should not be eaten at the same meal. Take the meat, or take the cheese—don't take both.

SHOULD BE PART OF MEAL

Cheese should be eaten with the meal and not added to the meal, as a desert is. If it is taken with the meal, made a real part of the meal, it is a wonderfully fine food.

There are some cheeses which are made from cream. For one who has difficulty in digesting fat, these varieties may be distressing, just as any other fat is distressing. Such persons should eat the skimmed milk or whole milk cheese.

The American people suffer from lack of lime. They appear to get enough to give them backbone, but they get too little to give them good teeth and sound bodies. Every food that carries lime is desirable.

HAS VALUABLE ELEMENTS

Cheese is such a food. Also it retains the sulphur and phosphorus of the milk, as well as iron and certain vitamins. All in all, cheese is a valuable addition to the family diet.

There is no objection to taking one of the rich, highly flavored varieties at the end of the meal, provided the quantity is small. My preference is to take a milder cheese during the course of the meal, much as butter is used.

We have much to say about properly balanced meals. What is such a meal, for instance at lunch time? How does this strike you?

Fruit, lettuce, bread and cheese—in this combination will be found the elements of a perfect meal, a wholesome meal, an appealing meal. Try it and see.

Ask your grocer to show you his display of cheese. In it you will find the foundation for many an attractive meal.

ELBOW MACARONI WITH STUFFED TOMATOES—1 package elbow macaroni, 6 tomatoes, 3 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 1½ cups hot milk, ½ cup grated cheese, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon paprika, ¼ cup buttered breadcrumbs, 1 teaspoon parsley, 1 hard-cooked egg.

Boil the elbow macaroni for 9 minutes in 4 quarts rapidly boiling water to which 1 tablespoon salt has been added. Drain. Cut off tops of the tomatoes and remove the pulp. In a double boiler, melt the butter, add the flour and when well blended pour in the hot milk. Cook for 10 minutes, then add cheese, salt and paprika and stir until thoroughly blended. Mix half of the sauce with 1½ cups of the cooked elbow macaroni and fill the tomatoes with the mixture. Cover the tops with breadcrumbs, dot with butter and bake in a moderate oven until the tomatoes are tender. On a platter place the remaining elbows and pour over them the remaining sauce. Put the stuffed tomatoes in the center and garnish with the egg, cut in slices, and the parsley. Spaghetti may be substituted for the elbow macaroni, or wide noodles may be used.

EGG NOODLE PEACH COBBLER—1 package wide egg noodles, 1 large can peaches, ¼ cup water, 2 tablespoons sugar, few grains nutmeg, 2 tablespoons butter, ¼ teaspoon salt, buttered breadcrumbs.

Parboil the noodles for 7 minutes in 4 quarts rapidly boiling water, to which 1 tablespoon salt has been added. Drain. Pour the juice off the peaches and slice them. To the juice add the water, sugar and nutmeg. In a well-greased baking dish put alternate layers of noodles and peaches, allowing the top layer to be of noodles. Dot each layer with bits of butter. Pour the seasoned liquid over the dish, cover with the crumbs. Dot with butter. Bake in a moderate oven for 12 minutes. Serve with hard sauce.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Waitresses Are Bored by Joking Diners

Do you kid waitresses, Big Boy—

And do you kid yourself that your line goes over big with them?

Riette's husband did. If you're doing it, tune in on Flora's broadcast. Here's what the waitress herself thinks about you and your kidding.

"Dear Sally:

"I just read Riette's letter and I would like to tell her my opinion of that smirking wise-cracking husband of hers. And she should be interested because I am a waitress, so I can give her a picture of the other side of this kidding business.

Forced to Listen

"I think he is a nuisance and if she knew what most waitresses really think of wise-guys like him she wouldn't waste any time worrying or imagine for a minute that we are laughing at her.

"If she only knew . . . and if the men could only get it pounded into their heads how tired we poor girls get of such so-called 'wise-crackers' and their so-called line. Honestly, it's terrible. And we must listen to it, day in and day out, with a smile on our faces for the sake of our jobs, and we must act as though we were really interested.

"Honestly, no matter how well you like men, real men, these bozos who come in and make passes and smart-Alec remarks to you like she says her husband does are usually so dumb and so conceited that it's astonishing to me how they can believe that women fall for them at all.

"I'd just like to be able just once to tell one of them where to get off. Believe me! His ears would burn for a month, and I don't mean maybe!

Seeds Own Medicine

"My advice to Riette is to try a little flirting around herself. Nothing serious, of course. But just let the Big Boy know he isn't everything in the world, and had better watch his step. Won't he be surprised though! It may go against her grain and dignity but, if I had him, I'd give him a good dose of his own medicine and see how it goes with the phoney Romeo. I'll bet he'd whistle an entirely different tune when the shoe was on the other foot.

Honestly, I don't know where people get this stuff that a wife must stand for anything on earth from her husband. Do you think a man respects his wife or himself either, for that matter, when he will belittle and humiliate her by going out with other women like that a public? How long would he stand it from her, I ask you?

But please, Riette, get the notion out of your head that the waitresses appreciate his attentions or get a kick out of having him notice them. They don't. Poor fish like that are just a pain in the neck to them. When you say the girls they were probably not smiling at him. They were laughing. And I hope he sees this!

So here's hoping that you lay down the law to him. Not for your own sake only but for ours, too, before we go batty from listening to such jokes. I just wish I had him for a few minutes. He'd wake up all right!

Should Be Considerate

This idea that the Little Woman has to be a good Sport and let her husband yap around certainly makes me tired! And I'm no crab either! How about him being a good enough sport to show her a little common ordinary consideration? It's only fair for him to give as good as he expects to get.

"FLORA."

Does that hold up a mirror to you?

Kinda jolts you, doesn't it?

It should. Because it's true. Flora isn't kidding you. She's telling you seriously just how you affect the average girl who has to carry a tray for a living. I've heard them tell the story before.

Your line may be harmless . . . but all too often it's a Pain in the Neck just the same.

So next time, don't be too sure that you're slipping something over on the missus when you pull it. You may be slipping something over on yourself instead.

Some Girls Keen to Impress Fellow-Workers With Own Popularity—Fay King

By FAY KING

Some girls are always impressing their fellow-workers with their popularity.

Telling about the grand times they have; the endless phone calls they get; the flowers that are sent and the presents that are given to them.

This often sends other girls home a little sad, wondering why one can be so popular and why these lovely things do not happen to them.

The truth is that a lot of that so-called popularity is persistence.

These girls do not tell you the times they call, and write notes and pester some new man they have met until they get to know him better.

Quite naturally you will not hear this side of the story from them.

They don't tell the half of it.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Dicky Seeks Aid in Search for His Dress Clothes.

I made an exasperated little grimace at Mary as Dicky's imperative call sounded from his bedroom. I had hoped to get down to the hotel dining-room and back before he should waken. But I knew what his call meant. He wanted my aid in finding his dress things and he would be resentful if I appeared to have anything on my mind save attending to his wishes.

"Anything I can do?" whispered Mary anxiously, as I called "Coming, right away."

"Yes. Go out to the elevator—don't telephone—and get hold of Purnell. Tell him to say to Mr. Veritzen that we shall be delayed a few minutes."

"Madge! What in the seven hinges of the heated oven are you doing?" Dickey's voice was closer now, and the next instant he threw his door open with a bang. But I was almost at the threshold and spoke in demure imitation of a saleswoman.

"May I help you?"

Dicky snorted, then grinned reluctantly as I bent my knees in a little curtsey, with finger beneath my chin.

"I'll say you can help me, for you are probably the person responsible. Nobody else monkeys with my things. If you'd left 'em alone when you went to the farm instead of trying to show how darned efficient you are as compared to my disorderly ways, I might be able to find things. As it is, I'm stumped completely. I can't find my dress shirts, or ties or my black silk socks or my studs or—"

"I trust you don't contemplate attending the party in pajamas," I said, with a little laugh, although I felt far from mirth as I thought of the hours I had spent in putting Dicky's things to rights. But I am so used to his caviling about his clothing that his rudeness does not sting me any more and besides I wanted to get him into as good a humor as possible before I slipped away to the hotel dining room.

"I shall have to do that little thing if I can't find my clothes," he growled. "What are you doing? Keep away from this bureau. They are not there, I tell you. I've been all through that thing from top to bottom. You must have carted them off to your room."

I kept a straight face with difficulty as I turned from the bureau, every drawer of which was opened and bursting with disarranged clothing, which, put into tidy piles, would have left room for even more articles.

"I'll take a look in my room," I said. "Have you taken your shower?"

"No. I haven't taken my shower," he copied my intonations faithfully. "I've been hauling these things over."

"Then suppose you take it now," I suggested, "and I'll try my best to find your things."

"All right," he agreed a bit sullenly, "but don't you go near that bureau!"

I was glad that he did not exact a promise from me on that subject as he went out of the room. For no sooner had the door closed than I was at the particular bureau drawer which I was sure contained the missing articles. Underneath the shirts at the very bottom of the drawer I drew forth a pillow case in which I always keep a full set of evening accessories, shirt, collar, socks, tie, studs, buttons, handkerchiefs and white silk muffler.

Hastily I pushed back the other things into the drawer, sighing over the crumpled shirts, but making no attempt to smooth them out, and emptying the pillow case, arranged the things on the bed. Dicky came back into the room as I finished putting the cuff buttons and studs into his shirt.

"Oh! so you remembered where you had put them?" he said in so relieved a tone that I was able to ignore the slur. "But those are not the cuff buttons and studs I wanted to wear tonight."

I put my arms akimbo and looked at him in burlesqued imitation of a fish wife. Sometimes if I can get Dicky to laughing I can avert the irritation which is invariably his when he is dressing for the evening.

"But those are what you will wear, my bucko lad," I said, "unless you know where your other studs are and will put them in yourself." There's a complete outfit there, all ready for you to put on, and I have not time to hunt out anything else. There are things I must see to right away."

I made a laughing grimace at him and turned toward the door. Dicky waited until I was half through it before he spoke.

"Be sure to tell Grandpa how perfectly sweet everything looks," he said.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Cauterization Advised in Rat Bites.

A great advancement in public health would follow the complete extermination of rats. It is important to destroy these pests, because they are a menace to health, as well as to property.

Dr. Copeland

Rats could be done away with completely if a systematic and sustained campaign of extermination were undertaken. Too little attention is given these carriers of filth and disease.

"Rat-bite fever" is a disease caused by the bite of these animals. It has been known in China and Japan for several centuries. We frequently see the disease in this country. It is quite common in districts where rats are prevalent and the hygiene is poor.

Ordinarily, the first sign of the disease does not appear until about five weeks after the bite. The wound, which has healed, has in the meantime become red and swollen. The tissues may break down and an ulcer forms. Following this, there is a sudden chill, and then a fever which lasts three or four days.

The first attack of fever disappears, but soon it is followed by another fever, which lasts a few days. During the period of the fever, the patient is very ill, complaining of pains in the muscles and joints. At times the sufferer may become delirious.

There may be an interval of a few days to a few weeks before there is another attack. These experiences are repeated and the trouble may continue for several months or years, an attack occurring every once in a while.

The disease is not a fatal one, but it is of great economic importance. It is a weakening disease, causing great loss of time from work. It greatly lowers the body resistance.

The cause of the disease has been traced to a microscopic organism. The germ is called the "spirochaeta morsus moris." These are terribly big words used to designate an ailment traced to this household pest. The organisms are found in the blood of the rat and transmitted to man by the bite.

The wound caused by a rat bite should be cauterized immediately. Treatment by a physician should not be delayed. In treating this condition specific drugs are used. They are injected in the veins of the patient.

Correct Manners

By MRS CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Addressing One's "In-Laws."

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please advise me what is the correct manner in which to address the parents of your husband. We have been having a discussion about it and would like to be certain about the facts. Is it proper to call them "Mother" and "Father," or "Mrs. Jones" and "Mr. Jones?" I mean when you are speaking directly to them.

M. H.

This depends on the circumstances . . . first, on what they wish. The best thing to do is to talk this over with your husband, and see what his suggestion is. If they are formal people, the question will not be such an easy one to answer, as it will be if they are informal, friendly people who would like any name that you would like to use. Sometimes, the mother-in-law and father-in-law do not wish anyone but their "very own" children to address them as Mother and Father. On the other hand, many mothers-in-law and fathers-in-law would be distressed at the formality and chill of "Mrs. Jones" and "Mr. Jones."

Very often the title of Mother and Father with the last name solves this problem . . . Mother Jones, Father Jones. Have you considered this form of name?

Greeting an Older Person.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please settle this argument. Is it proper for an older person to greet a younger person first, or vice versa, when meeting on the street formally or informally? In this case the aunt is older than the niece and says the niece should greet her aunt first. Am I right?

READER.

The aunt should greet her niece first, if there is any precedence. Usually, what happens is that they greet each other at the same time. But, socially speaking, the one who is given the privilege of making the acknowledgment in such a case, is the one who, socially speaking, is the more important. And in this case, it is the older woman, the aunt.

Young Man's Privilege.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I claim that when skating it is the boy's privilege to ask a girl to skate with him, but the other person doesn't agree with me. Which of us is right?

2. Should a boy thank the girl for skating with him?

READER.

1. You are. The boy, in this case, has the same privilege that he has at a dance . . . the privilege of asking the girl to be his partner.

2. Yes . . . and, again as at a dance, the girls says how much she has enjoyed the skate.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

No sense hating one's nose. Few noses are unsightly in shape, yet few noses are considered satisfactory by their owners. Usually the style of nose arranged by Missus Nature conforms harmoniously with other features. Surgical assistance can be sought to change the contour, to remodel the old factory feature, but it should be sought only when the nose is disfiguring. And then only the most capable of surgeons should be consulted. Charlatans do havoc to the human phiz.

With all our labor-saving devices, housekeeping is no button-pressing business. Window sills must be dusted, drying pans scoured. The problem of keeping finger nails looking like so many pink rose petals is about what it always was. An important detail is to keep the cuticle detached from the nail base, so that rag-tags and bob-tails won't form and develop into hangnails. Push the cuticle back gently with the towel after washing the hands and every night apply oil or cuticle cream. Difficult for useful, busy hands to be kept beautiful, but it must be done.

Slim gals may count their ribs, mourn over pointed elbows, be grateful for floating draperies to curtain their little spindle shanks, but their lot is joyous compared to the heart-sobbing sisters who must count their calories. Thin girls can fatten if they set their minds to the matter. Less nervous activity, longer hours of sleep, one quart of milk a day, cod liver oil in regular doses, combined with plenty of faith, will increase weight and cushion over the sharp edges of the anatomical frame.

It is buzzed about that Cleopatra wore green eye shadows and painted her eyebrows and lashes black. Will they never get through talking about that siren? There are others who believe in giving thought to appearance, chief among them being Mahomet who, to make his eyes lustrous, painted his lashes with khol and smeared kohl on the eyelids. Worse yet, he dyed his beard a bright red, and wore clothes of gay colors. This make-up business isn't a bit of devilry devised by the modern woman. The cosmetic business was going good more than 3,000 years before the Christian era.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Saturday, March 7

Another day of complication and impediment is foreseen by the adverse configurations of important planets. There is sign of many peculiar situations which may be taken advantage of to direct affairs into progressive channels, but reckless and impetuous words and deeds but tend to aggravate the difficulties. Vexations and perplexities may be caused by letters or writings, and social or domestic problems may add to the inauspicious state of affairs.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year of difficult and complicated affairs, which may be turned to some degree of profit, especially in new undertakings, by calm and collected actions and refraining from contention and unguarded speech.

A child born on this day may be disposed to be turbulent, intense and aggressive, but should be trained to subdue strenuous methods and bid for success and harmony by tact and amiability.

Household Hints

If you find snow shoveling a frequent, thankless task, just wax your shovel and you will find the job much easier. Wet snow will not stick to it.

When melting chocolate for cakes, etc., line top of double boiler with a piece of waxed paper, place the chocolate in and melt over hot water in usual manner. When chocolate is melted the waxed paper can be lifted out, chocolate and all, thereby avoiding waste and dish washing.

One does not have to wait until housecleaning time to wash paints, you know. If certain sections get more quickly soiled than others, wipe off these surfaces with a soft cloth that has been rubbed directly on a bar of white soap. Soiled places are bound to appear on the kitchen woodwork and should be wiped off periodically.

Prudence Penny's Recipes

eggs are cooked. In food value the dish is equal to nearly 2 pounds of average beef.

CHEESE AND SPINACH ROLL—Cook 2 quarts of spinach in water for 10 minutes. Drain off the water, add 1 tablespoon butter, and cook until tender. Chop. Add 1 cupful grated cheese and then bread crumbs enough to make a mixture sufficiently stiff to form into a roll, or leave more moist and cook in a baking dish.

SANDWICHES AU GRATIN—Make sandwiches of toasted bread and thin slices of cold roast or chicken or turkey. Cut into triangles and place in buttered individual baking dishes. Cover with a medium white sauce made of 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup evaporated milk, 1 cup water and ½ teaspoon salt. Add a layer of grated cheese, sprinkle with paprika and bake in a moderate oven until the cheese is slightly browned.

FRANKFURTERS IN UNSEASONED WHITE SAUCE—1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon flour, ½ cup evaporated milk, ½ cup water, 8 frankfurters.

Make a white sauce of the butter, flour, evaporated milk and water. Add frankfurters and cook in double boiler for 15 minutes. Serve on toasted bread or buns opened, buttered and toasted.

ROLLED SANDWICHES—Remove crusts from a loaf of sandwich bread. Cut in thin slices the length of the loaf with a very sharp knife. There should be 9 or 10 long slices. Spread each slice evenly with creamed butter to which finely chopped parsley has been added.

For 9 such bread slices it will take about 1½ cups butter and ¾ cup chopped parsley. Cream cheese, softened with evaporated milk, may be used in place of butter. Roll the slices and wrap them firmly in a clean cloth or towel. Put in cold place for several hours. When ready to serve cut each roll crosswise into thin slices. Each roll makes about 6 sandwiches. They may be toasted under the broiler if you desire to serve them hot.

CREAM OF SALMON SOUP—Remove skin and bones from ½ can of salmon and rub fish through a sieve. Add slowly to 4 cups of thin white sauce, season well, and, just before serving, add 1 cup of cream and heat in a double boiler. Serve with minced parsley sprinkled over the top.

SPEAKING OF BUTTER

Pittsburgh housewives have learned that they simply can not buy butter as tasty and reliable as Kroger's anywhere else—even for only a few cents less. The explanation is simple: The very foundation of the Kroger butter business is QUALITY—quality, first, last and always. The price is never unreasonable, but that's a secondary feature.

If you demand butter with a really fresh flavor, try a pound of Kroger's today. Then, ask yourself where you have ever tasted better!

Studio Buys English Story For Ann Harding's Next Picture

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, March 6.

Closing the deal by cable, Charles R. Rogers, head of R-K-O-Pathe, has purchased the English best-seller, "A Little Flat in a Temple," for Ann Harding's next picture.

In case the title is cryptic to you, a "temple" is a bachelor's apartment house.

Thousands of copies of this novel by Pamela Wynne were sold in England during 1930. It is about a girl who falls in love with a young man and becomes his housekeeper. The situation is somewhat similar to that of the memorable "Seventh Heaven."

Ann Harding

Still further cheering news is that Horace Jackson who did "Holiday," will prepare the adaptation and dialogue for the talkie.

HOW TEMPUS DOES FUGIT!

Perhaps you will get a chuckle out of the drunk who saw Jack Coogan, Sr. dancing in a local hotel and said:

"He sure was funny when he was a youngster."

IS THIS UTOPIA?

F. W. Murnau is sowing the seeds of discontent in Hollywood with his description of the ideal life in Bora Bora, the South Sea island, where he filmed his picture, "Tabu." The 1,200 natives in the tiny isle spend their time swimming, fishing, lassoing sharks and bathing under waterfalls.

"There is nothing to do but play and love," says the director. "The natives do both to perfection."

As soon as he can complete arrangements with Paramount for the release of his film, the director will go back to the South Seas.

"I have built a house on Tahiti, some 300 miles from Bora Bora," He says. "There I can combine some of our civilization with the beauty and simplicity of the untainted spots. Tahiti is civilized. Bora Bora is just a gem to which I can go when I want to get clear away from our earth for a time in paradise."

YOUTH FINDS IT CAN'T HAVE HAPPINESS IN 'STOLEN HEAVEN'

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Nancy Carroll who is becoming quite the emotional actress, and Phillips Holmes, her old wheat-farmer Romeo of "Devil's Holiday," are at their romancing again. They are co-featured in "Stolen Heaven," the picture which opened yesterday in both the Fulton and the Sheridan Square.

Stolen Heaven" is a dramatic romance told with a gesture of motion picture daring. The story, written by Dana Burnet, author of Miss Carroll's earlier "Shop-worn Angel," introduces a suicide pact angle, and though the "pact" is never carried out, the idea is very much there. It is this phase probably that caused Pa Pitt's censors to falter before letting Dear Old Public get a peep at it.

SAFE AS A SERMON

That little convention known as marriage also is treated a bit shabbily. But this isn't a bold departure any more. Literature, stage and screen have been making sophisticated faces at matrimony for a long time.

Viewed in its entirety, however, the picture is safe and sane enough. It is all softened by a tone of preachment. You can't laugh at conventions without crying later. You can't beat the law. You can't steal money and get away with it. You can't steal happiness at all. Thus, what first appears a daring theme ends with the flourish of a pulpit sermon.

LIFE'S REBELS

Both Miss Carroll and Mr. Holmes make a sincere effort in portraying a couple of life's rebels. She is a girl, alone in the big city. He is a boy, with stolen money in his pocket. They want music, bright lights and laughter. They stick their tongues out, as it were, at destiny and take a fling at Palm Beach gay life. They will live for a day, or maybe a week, and then they will die—as if they can be masters of their fate!

"Stolen Heaven" is not a sensation. It is just a courageous little story of a boy and a girl who imagine they can beat life; a story unfolded under the searching and exacting eyes of Director George Abbott.

Orchestra, Floor Show for Sanders

The Ambassadors Orchestra, of Atlantic City, will be the featured attraction tomorrow night in Sanders Inn, Freeport road, near Aspinwall. A New York floor revue has been engaged for tomorrow night. The inn is now available for private parties during the week, it is announced.

Logic

Why should we part with sullen, biting phrases,
Fixing the blame on vanished episodes?
What room have we for hatred in the gazes
We share before we take our separate roads?
Sinner or saint—who cares—it is but human
When love dies down to nothingness at last
For me to seek a maid and you a new man
And rid ourselves of bitterness that's past.

Love has gone cool, but we are not the first two
Others have learned that gaudy bubbles burst, too,
Leaving a world that's best described as flat;
(Why should we fret? It's all been loads of fun—
—Don Wahn.

The Crack Awful

Jay C. Flippen introduced Barney Gallant the other night in this manner:

"Folks, I want you to meet the guy Lon Chaney always wanted to look like."

Heheheh

F. P. A., in The Conning Tower, points out that the Milt Gross influence is discoverable on Third avenue, where there is a sign reading The Eleska Press Co.

The same influence is discoverable in Variety's current Literati department in which they call him Harry Hensen.

Wal, I swan!

John C. Shambow, of Montreal, visited Corey Ford's retreat, Freedom, Maine, recently. The town was enjoying a holiday and the town band was rehearsing near the city hall. The following conversation was overheard:

"That band sure is good," said one listener.

"Yes, sirree," said another, "and that Lem Smalley certainly plays a mean piccolo. He's sure some musician!"

Beautiful Wordage

A group was whiling away the early hours gabbing about this, that and those. One of the lads made the conversation more engaging when he asked his listeners:

"What is your ideal, complete, perfectly rounded, self-sustaining sentence?" To which a thinker replied: "Let there be light."

Another's voice was: "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof," and his second offering was: "Pardon is the word to all."

A clown interrupted to suggest: "Your services are no longer required," but everybody conceded that the classic of them all was "He was born with a gift for laughter and a sense that the world was mad!"

O, Mr. Wilstach!

Suggested for the simile dictionary: Dorothy Parker's: She looked as new as a peeled egg . . . Merle Johnston's: As rare as a chorus boy in a burlesque show.

One Man's Opinion

One of the theatrical weeklies, known for its harsh opinions, recently sold life subscriptions to the members of the profession for $100. The theatrical paper then published a long list of stars who had subscribed for life.

"How come you didn't buy one?" Ruth Etting asked Ed. Wynn.

"Because," mournfully replied Wynn, "I couldn't afford to let that paper in my house. My children think I'm a funny comedian."

Path of Love

The path of love leads but to the grave for Anne Forrest as heroine in "Death Takes a Holiday," which the George Sharp Players will present next week in the Pitt.

Boy Scouts to See Janney in Stanley

More than 150 Boy Scouts, selected from all sections of Allegheny County, will gather at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning in front of the City-County Building and march through the downtown to the Stanley to greet Leon Janney, boy talkie star, who is appearing in person in that theater. At the Stanley they will make Janney an honorary member of the Eagle Scouts, the highest order of the organization.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The second best advance mail order sale of the Alvin season is the record of "The Student Prince," which will be visible and carable next week. Youth will be served, but this veteran operetta says "after me." Gertrude Lang and George Hassell are among its who's who. The afternooners will be served Wednesday and on old Mr. Satyr's well known day.

The art of the stage has been said to be that of holding the mirror up to nature. Judging by the modern play, the mirror must be badly cracked.

Anne Forrest is blonde. Gentlemen prefer blondes, according to Anita Loos, a brunette. Death, in "Death Takes a Holiday," next week's bill in the Pitt, is a perfect gentleman if there ever was a perfect one. There you have the terms of a proposition in logic. Therefore, what? Only those who are able to answer need go to the foot of the class.

An ordinary mortal is judged by the company he keeps, whereas the actor's reputation is established by the company that keeps him.

Harry Brown, of the Nixon, is having more trouble with his dates than a flapper who has no telephone. First the N. Y. O. (New York office) informed him that "Strange Interlude" would be here the week of March 23. Then NYO told him not to hold his breath so long because "S. I." would amble in for three days, March 19, 20 and 21. Finally NYO discovered it had guessed right the first time and that it meant the whole week of March 23 all the time and that "Green Grow the Lilacs" would have to wait until the week of March 30 before showing its verdant color. That's the very, very latest on the subject. "Lilacs" is the fifth Guild subscription play.

Just to prove that our allegiance to the stage is at least semi-solid, we cast our vote in that corn pone dunking debate for Dr. Rockwell, the well-known T. B. (teabone) specialist and maker of fine cigar ashes since 1873.

CARNERA VERDICT BOOED

Sport Comment

By JAMES J. LONG

Loss of Swetonic.

One Fox Record Safe.
Shields' Many Talents.
Carnera True to Dope.

SPRING JINX AGAIN TRAILS PIRATES

THE PERSISTENT BASEBALL jinx that appears to make the Pittsburgh club its particular target every spring surely is hitting on all cylinders. The ailments that have prevented Paul Waner and Adam Comorosky from reporting may be classified as only minor casualties, and there has been no doubt in the mind of any local fan that Larry French would come into the fold eventually or the club would trade him for another southpaw equally as serviceable, but things have now taken a more serious turn in the development that Steve Swetonic is lost for a couple of months or longer and that Bill Regan is out indefinitely with a severe ankle injury.

Steve Swetonic

The news late yesterday that a bone in the elbow of Swetonic's pitching arm is chipped came as all the more of a blow to the home fans because the failure of Manager Ens to mention Steve in a letter to President Dreyfuss the preceding day had given the impression that the North Sider's trouble was trivial.

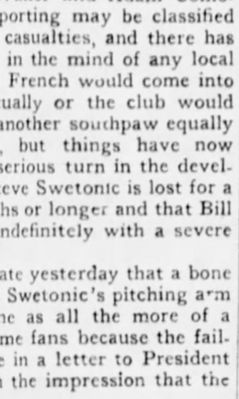
THE INCAPACITATION OF both of the native Pittsburghers on the regular squad is the first discouraging note in the otherwise favorable spring training developments. Possibly, Regan's injury will not amount to much and Bill will be back on the job within a short time, but in Swetonic's return to Pittsburgh for an operation on his chipped elbow the Bucs are deprived until May or later of the services of a first-string pitcher.

Swetonic has been the victim of ill luck ever since he came up. In 1929 he was handicapped for a long time by a tendency on the part of a finger on his right hand to develop a blister after he had pitched two or three innings, rendering it impossible for him to curve or control the ball, and last year an operation for appendicitis put him out of commission for practically three months. There surely will be a flock of good breaks coming to Steve when luck starts to even itself up.

HOWEVER, IN THE light of another letter which President Dreyfuss has just received from Manager Ens, the Pirate situation is not nearly as unfavorable as would appear from yesterday's drab reports from the Paso Robles camp. The club as a whole will be in good shape to carry on, when Paul Waner and Comorosky get in the lineup, according to the manager.

President Dreyfuss, who was viewing the loss of Swetonic and Regan philosophically, saying that every club had to have its share of such misfortune and that it was better that accidents should happen now than after the opening of the season, found further encouragement in Ens' letter.

JEWEL'S TONE GIVES the hope that the Bucs are strong enough in the pitching department to stand up under the loss of Swetonic, for he writes that he is all set to open with a staff of eight hurlers, and he does not name either Swetonic or French in the list. The men whom Ens says will give the Rovers an adequate slab staff, even if Swetonic and French are not available at the start, are Remy Kremer, Ervin Brame, Glenn Spencer, Charley Wood, Heinie Meinie, Claude Willoughby, Andy Bednar and George Grant.



Remy Kremer

THE ABOVE LIST of pitchers named by Ens in his letter may be accepted as a tip-off as to the hurlers who are going to be retained for the season's opening, according to the manager's present plans. The only brand new one from the minors in the lot is Grant, a righthander drafted from Rochester, once tried by Cleveland. Jim Mosolf may be added, though his early workouts were confined to first base.

Ens adds the pleasing news that Kremer, who won 20 games last year and was equaled only by Pat Malone, of the Cubs, is in better shape than in any other spring in his career. Wood, too, has improved physically, he says, having gained five pounds, and all the others named are in satisfactory trim.

TWO FINE NEW pitching prospects, in Ens' eyes, are Jim Bivin and Vernon Kennedy, both from the Mississippi Valley League. John Vanusek and Lee Johnson, the former a lefthander, neither of whom was counted upon to stay up this year, have considerable to learn, he says.

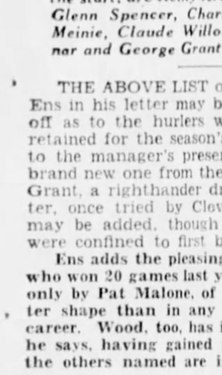
The pilot repeats that there is no cause to worry about the catching department. He rates Ed Phillips a real backstop to pair with Ralston Hemsley, and says he will have no trouble finding the third receiver needed among Joe Bird, Hal Finney and Maurice Mealey.

ENS DECLARES THAT Gus Suhr, George Grantham, Tommy Thevenow and Pie Traynor, in their early workouts, shape up as well as any infield in the major leagues. Of the new men he expresses a liking for Infielder Tony Piet as a good fielder, fine thrower and promising hitter; says Outfielder Forrest Jensen is just as good a ball player as he was reputed to be in the Western League, and rates Outfielder Pete McClanahan as a hard hitter and good fielder who reminds him of Ira Flagstead. He closes with a good word for Stuart Clarke and Ben Sankey, whom he terms "the same old pair of hustlers."

SUN BEAU THIS year possibly may pass Gallant Fox's record for total money won on the turf, but one mark established by the latter horse which is likely to stand for a long time is that for earnings in a single season. W. C. Freeland's statistics show that Gallant Fox is the only colt the world over that ever won $300,000 in a single season, his record last year having been $308,275 net.

It took Zev three years to win $313,639, and Sun Beau was five years in running up his total of $264,819. Gallant Fox, now retired to the farm, stands out alone for winnings in a single season, just as he does in stakes won in sequence—Wood Memorial, Preakness, Kentucky Derby, Belmont, Dwyer, Arlington Classic, Saratoga Cup, Lawrence Realization and Jockey Club Gold Cup.

FOOTBALL AND OTHER sports lost a star when Frank Shields decided to stick to tennis, and Pitt missed getting a great all-around athlete when he gave up the idea of entering the local university, according to John Patrick Crowley, Yale fullback.



Primo Carnera

Crowley declares that if Shields had gone to college and developed his talents he would have become one of the best all-around men in the country. He says Shields was a fine basketball and baseball player at Roxbury School, a rare boxer, a strong weight man on the track team and a budding football star who could heave a forward pass 70 yards. But Frank gave it all up for tennis.

THE NEWS THAT Primo Carnera had won the decision over Jimmy Maloney in their 10-round bout at Miami last night didn't cause a ripple of surprise in boxing circles here or elsewhere, as such an outcome had been generally expected. In spite of the fact that Maloney had defeated Carnera in Boston on October 7 last, most fans figured that last night's match never would have been arranged if certain big fistic interests had not felt sure, for some reason or other, that Primo would be the winner this time. These interests are grooming the giant Italian for a championship or near-championship match at a big outdoor show next summer, and they would not have risked killing the card by a defeat at Maloney's hands if they had not been pretty confident Carnera was not in danger. Now they'll use Primo's victory as an argument that he has improved and has a title chance. As a matter of fact, all that it proves is that Carnera can beat Maloney, and as a popular fiction character used to remark, "it is hard to conceive anything more inconsequential."

W. P. I. A. L. FIRST ROUND PLAY ENDS

Probable Lineup

Duquesne.		Coraopolis.
Servick	F.	Cooper
Zeleznick	F.	Borovich
Karnovich	C.	Hendel
Durik	G.	Spadel
Alexandrovich	G.	Cardemen

By JESS CARVER.

Tonight the first-round contesting of the W. P. I. A. L.'s annual championship elimination tournament will be completed, Sections VII and IX drawing the honor of completing the initial round. Section VII offers Duquesne, runner-up in last year's event to New Kensington, and Section IX presents Coraopolis.

Strange enough, oddly, if you really prefer, both of tonight's contestants had to indulge in play-off games before clinching their sectional honors. Duquesne wound up in a tie with Homestead, and Coraopolis was all even with McKees Rocks, defending champ in Section IX. Duquesne wound up winning nine games while losing two, and Coraopolis won 13 and lost three in sectional play.

For the season, Duquesne annexed 10 victories out of 15 starts. Coraopolis captured 12 decisions out of 15.

Coraopolis will do well to be on the alert against the attack of Servick, Zaleznick and Durik, of the Dukes. The Corry entry boasts three aces in Cooper, Hendel and Cardemen.

Tonight's victor will have the clever McDonald passers to get past in the second round.

Hail Scottdale

There were five seconds remaining of play. Brownsville, leading by a point, at 34 to 33, had the ball under the Scottdale basket. Joe Youhouse, a guard, zipped a pass in the direction of Francis Patrick, the crackerjack forward. But that pass never reached its goal. Instead, Rush, Scottdale's lanky center, pulled it out of the air, sent it whirling toward the basket. It hit the backboard, and, with perfect reverse English, it dropped through, bringing Scottdale a 35-34 victory and a passport into the second round of the annual W. P. I. A. L. championship elimination tournament.

Last night's battle was the most hectic, the most see-saw and easily the most thrilling of the entire first round. It was a game featuring remarkable recoveries and rallies, of accurate shooting and matched two speedy, fighting quintets.

BROWNSVILLE FIGHTS

Brownsville, making its first attempt in the W. P. I. A. L. series, brought to town a big, strong team, a fife and drum corps, a band and some 1,500 rabid, loyal fans, who, like the team, never quit. Scottdale, a bit more experienced, with a great forward in Don Eicher and a pip of a center in Tom Rush and a cool and calm defensive star in Conway, was a worthy representative of turbulent Section X, from whence has come the great Uniontown teams of the past.

In fact, it was a perfect shame that there had to be a loser last night.

Scotdale rushed way to a nine-point lead, saw this sliced by the scrappy Section Thirteeners, but managed to hold a 12-10 advantage at the end of the first period.

Again Scottdale swept to the fore, and this time, managed to hold off the challenge of the hard-working Brownsville crew, leading by 23 to 15 at the half.

Garden Acts To Curb Scalpers

Believe it or not, but in these days of depression Pittsburgh is suffering for the first time in its history from ticket scalping on boxing shows.

Manager John L. Hernon, of Motor Square Garden, today announced that no more reservations will be taken by telephone for $1 seats for the Jackie Rodgers-Johnny Datto third meeting, next Monday night. He said these pasteboards have been ordered in such large quantities that he is certain speculators are on the job, as was the case last Monday night, when the place was sold out for the Midget Wolgast-Willie Davies show and many regular patrons returned to the box office to demand to know why tickets were available at the box office. It is to protect the regular patrons that the Garden is acting.

The $1 tickets will be sold at the box office singly or in small lots, but no more telephone orders for reservations will be filled. The usual reservation service on the $2 and $3 tickets will be available, however.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: TWO OPPOSITE-BOUND AIRPLANES HAD EQUAL VELOCITY TAILWINDS—Recently on the Seattle-San Diego Airway, near Eugene, Ore., Grover Tyler, flying the northbound plane at an altitude of 10,000 feet, had a 40-mile tail wind, and Russell Cunningham, passing Tyler in the southbound ship at an elevation of 3,000 feet, also was being speeded on his way by a 40-mile wind on the tail of his ship. These facts are verified by the Boeing Air Transport Company, of Seattle. MRS. J. CAPEBIANCO GETS NEW JOB

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

The announcement that Johnny Capebianco, erstwhile pro at the Meadville Country Club and former assistant at Edgewood, has accepted a similar position at the Culbertson Hills Country Club, at Edinboro, came as good news to his many friends throughout the district, for it marked another step in the rise of the budding career of the first West Pen caddie-masters champion. The Edinboro course, Capebianco says, is one of the finest, being of 18 holes, with another regulation 18-hole layout under construction.

Capebianco

A successor has not been named, but it would not be surprising if Archie Loeffler, former Hill Crest and San Antonio pro; his brother, Ben Loeffler, last year at Valley Heights, or Johnny Hapchuck, former assistant at Schenley Park, would go after the berth, and one of them obtain it, in spite of the fact all three are negotiating with district clubs for posts next summer.

It is understood that Chuck Bright, former assistant at Westmoreland, has left the Duquesne Country Club, and that the greenkeeper at Valley Heights has been elevated to the proship. Hill Crest has not announced a successor to Oscar Morrison as greenkeeper, although Fiore Bruno is expected to return as pro.

The chairmen of the green committees of the various local country clubs will be honor guests at the annual banquet to be given by the Greenskeepers of Western Pennsylvania at the Fort Pitt Hotel on March 23.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Miss Lenore Kight, the young mermaid of Jack Scarry's Homestead Library Club, who won the 100-yard senior free-style swimming title of the Allegheny Mountain Association, of the A. A. U., in the Irene Kaufman Settlement pool a few nights ago, is the best feminine sprint swimmer in these parts, and, according to no less a swimming authority than Ben Bright, of the Willows Pool, might place among the first three in a national event . . . She also swims well at distances up to 500 yards and is a good fancy diver . . . Incidentally, it is reported that Miss Josephine McKim, former Homestead lass, who won international swimming honors and now is studying in California, may return here and compete again as a Pittsburgh representative.

Bobby Ray, who boxes in the second bout at Motor Square Garden next Monday night, doesn't belong in that spot, judging from his record . . . He is just back from serving some six years in the Army, during which time he won the Army-Navy-Marine Corps triservice welterweight title three years in a row, first gaining the laurels when he was sent from Panama to the Sesqui-centennial Stadium in Philadelphia to compete in 1926 . . . He began his boxing career eight years ago, meeting Young Piazzi, Young Zabish and Bricky Ryan in bouts here, and then enlisted . . . Four and one-half years ago, he returned here on furlough and boxed Johnny Vivio.

After seeing service in many parts of the globe for Uncle Sam, Ray wound up with a stretch in the guard house at Alcatraz, Cal., an island just outside San Francisco, for being absent without leave for a couple of weeks . . . There he served one of the goofiest sentences ever dealt out in any man's army . . . For his offense he was ordered to peel 50,000 potatoes and scrub a large dining room with a tooth brush . . . It took him seven months to finish the job and he claims he wore out four gross of toothbrushes . . . He put in several hours each morning at the scrubbing job and sometimes also worked at it in the afternoons and officers carefully measured each day's toil and kept a record of it until he had covered the entire space . . . As for potatoes, Bobby says he never wants to look another one in the face.

While on the Coast, Bobby was a close friend of Max Baer, the heavyweight, who recently came East and was fed to the lions and has returned home . . . You'll find a lot of good names in the list of Bobby's opponents on the Coast, which gives some idea of how much he must have come along since the local fans last cast eyes upon his fistic work . . . Among the men he has boxed are Madison Dix, Frankie Stetson, Louie O'Neil, Stetson's brother; Red McDonald, Joe Martinez, Wayne Pettaway, Gilbert Attel, Charley Fernandez, Paul Negri and Wesley Ketchel—HARRY KECK

Local School Quints In Waynesburg Play

WAYNESBURG, Pa., March 6.—Announcement has been made by Waynesburg High School officials that they will sponsor a basketball tournament here on March 13 and 14 which will be open to all high schools in the district.

Schools which already have signified their intention of participating, include Braddock, Carnegie and Mt. Lebanon. Several other Pittsburgh district teams are anticipated as later entrants.

PITT MITTMEN MAKE DEBUT

Pitt makes its intercollegiate boxing debut tonight, the newly-organized Panther mitt team swapping wallops with the H. T. Little Club, of Homestead, in Sokol Hall.

A crippled Carnegie Tech mitt team took a 6-1 beating at the hands of West Virginia in the Tartan gym last night, about 1,500 attending the bouts. The Skibos were forced to default in three classes, due to sickness and injuries on the part of their boxers. Capt. Alec Ducanis, of Tech, saved the day for the locals by beating Karr, of West Virginia, to chalk up the Tartans' only point. The summary:

Thiel May Name Benson Grid Coach

GREENVILLE, Pa., March 6.—C. O. Benson, now completing his second year as basketball coach at Thiel College here, may be named football mentor also within the next few days, succeeding Tink Rowley.

Thiel College officials have been working toward completing a plan, made several years ago, to have its basketball and football teams under the same coach.

PHILS RETIRE NICHOLS

WESTERHAVEN, Fla., March 6.—Chester Nichols, of the Phils, is to be shelved on the voluntary retired list at his own request. Nichols has had trouble with his arm since last summer, and became discouraged when it failed to respond to treatment.

MALONEY LOSES DECISION TO PRIMO

MIAMI, Fla., March 6.—(AP.)—The mystery of just how good Primo Carnera is as a heavyweight fighter was not much nearer solution today as a result of the financially unsuccessful battle of the cracked rib.

Nevertheless, the ponderous puncher from Italy, as a result of gaining the referee's decision over Jimmy Maloney, of Boston, in 10 rounds last night, moved in the general direction of a championship match later this year with the winner of the Stribling-Schmeling title contest.

They had everything but a stretcher in Carnera's corner. But not a doctor or a hypodermic needle was put into action. The huge, wild-swinging Italian alternately lumbered and danced, grinned and winced through 10 rounds.

CARNERA EFFECTIVE

Carnera had an effective left hand. He staggered Maloney in the first, second and eighth rounds. He showed no inclination or ability to use his right at all, except as a blocking instrument. For the most part he was outfooted, outboxed and outcuffed.

Referee Elmer (Slim) McClelland, of Detroit, showed no hesitation in lifting Carnera's glove in token of victory, basing his decision on Primo's aggressiveness and more effective punching when the blows connected.

The crowd of perhaps 20,000 spectators, occupying less than two-fifths of the Madison Square Garden Stadium, disagreed violently with the verdict and remained for fully 15 minutes to boo lustily. This sympathetic reaction for Maloney, outweighed 73½ pounds, was shared only partially in the press rows.

The Associated Press scoresheet credited Maloney with five rounds and Carnera only three, with two others even. Scoring unofficially, Miami Boxing Commission judges favored Maloney on two sides of the ring, but the majority of critics agreed with the official verdict.

Carnera got even for the decision he lost to Maloney in Boston late last year. He did so despite the handicap of a fractured rib, testified to by a big plaster of adhesive bandage, and an obvious lack of boxing condition.

PRIMO GAME

Carnera manifested gameness, but little skill. He did seem able to "take it." His tremendous advantages in weight, height and reach were assets that Jimmy found difficult to offset. Maloney's best punch was a left to the body. He weighed 199½ to Carnera's 273.

There were no knockdowns. Maloney was wrestled to the floor in the second round in a wild mix-up, but bobbed up without a count. Primo, backing off from a stiff poke to the stomach in the fourth, slipped to his knees, but got up, grinned, gestured apology to the crowd, and shook hands with Maloney.

Promoter Frank J. Bruen, on a gate estimated at $70,000, faced a loss of possibly $30,000. He had figured $100,000 was necessary to break even.

WINDSOR, Ont., March 6.—The Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets and the Windsor Bulldogs will wind up their International Hockey League season series here tonight with a game that is regarded by both teams as being one of great importance.

The visiting puckmen need a triumph tonight to hold London even in their sensational fight for the last title play-off berth, and the Bulldogs' position within the money circle is not so secure but that they can be passed by both the Tecumsehs and the Jackets.

REISE TO START

A win for the Steel City icemen will give them an even break in the season series with the locals, and will almost guarantee their finishing the week's campaigning in fourth place. A Windsor triumph will not fall far short of assuring the Bulldogs a place in the play-offs, and will seriously jeopardize Pittsburgh's chances of getting into the championship series.

When the invaders arrived here today Charles Reid, their coach, said that Leo Reise, defense star, was the only member of the Pittsburgh squad not in top form for a hard battle. Reise, who is severely handicapped with an attack of tonsilitis, quit a sickbed in a Pittsburgh hospital to make the trip, and he has been under a doctor's care since he arrived here. He is determined to get back into harness tonight, and Coach Reid has given the fast backfielder permission to return to his place in the starting lineup.

ODDS EVEN ON VICTORY

The Bulldogs have found the Jackets very troublesome foemen all season, and they rule no better than an even choice to turn back the invaders tonight. The Jackets are expected to maintain a fast pace from start to finish, for they will have plenty of time to regain their strength for their next fight, with the Cleveland Indians, in Pittsburgh, next Tuesday. Two interesting little boxers will flit about the ring in the windup bout at the Moose Temple, downtown, tonight.

They are Marty Gold, of Philadelphia, a veteran bantamweight, who fooled the fans by giving away a lot of weight and going the limit against Jackie Rodgers when the latter was swinging along in his great knockout stride a year ago, and Mose Butch, local southpaw, who has been coming along in fine fashion, gaining confidence and shaping up better with every fight. This bout will mark Butch's debut as a windup boxer.

Gold

TRACEY VS. TAYLOR

Two good middleweight punchers meet in the six-round semi-final. They are blonde Jimmy Taylor, of Cleveland, who knocked out Al Becker, in the Moose ring last Friday night, and Jack Tracey, North Side Negro, who stopped Billy Flanagan in the first round at Motor Square Garden last Tuesday.

Marty Gornick, of McKeesport, boxes Tiger Joe Clark, South Side Negro, in the second bout, and Paul Balint, of the North Side, and Don Frazier, Negro featherweight, meet in the opener at 8:30.

Between Rounds

Benny McArthur, of McKeesport, and Harry Devine, of Worcester, Mass., who took the winner at Erie tonight, have fought draws within the past two weeks with Ray Collins, of Erie, who meets Johnny Jadick in Detroit tonight.

The Motor Square Garden card for next Monday night is complete with an opening battle between Joey Kaltkash, of Lawrenceville, and Al Farone, of the West End, rounding it out. Johnny Dundo and Jackie Rodgers are in the windup, with Billy Holt and Mickey Duris in the semi-final, and Bobby Kay, of the Hill, Harry Kahn, brother of Ziggy Kahn, of the U. S. A., and Joey Spiegel in the second bout.

Joe Marciante, of New York is due in town today or tomorrow to remain here under the management of Percy Sherman, of Toronto, and challenge the leading featherweights. He has beaten Young Zuzardo, Phil Zwick, Eddie (a Dood, Leo (Kid) Roy, Pete Sanstol, Benny Bell, Johnny Erickson and Kid Francis, among others.

Young Rudy, of Charleroi, aided Hugh Roberts, now of Wheeling, but true main bout of a show at East Liverpool, O., next Tuesday night. Roberts won over Rudy at the Moose Temple here when he was on his winning streak.

James (Red) Mason has returned to Chicago after a hurried visit here to attend to some business matters. He does not expect to be back in Pittsburgh until about the middle of April.

The Everlast Boxing Record Book for 1931 is off the press.

A return bout between Benny Bass and Bud Taylor in Philadelphia being "out," the Arena of that city has offered a battle with Taylor to Lew Massey and Harry Blitman, to be fought one week from next Monday night.

Building Up Big Fights

The Man Behind Tex Rickard's Fistic Ballyhoos.

CHAPTER XLVII.

It was a strange thing that, with the passing of Jack Dempsey as his great ace, Tex Rickard's luck seemed to change. Right off the reel, he came back with a Tunney and Heeney fight, and, while the bout got as much favorable publicity as any bout Tex ever had engineered, the thing fell flat and was a fine bump on the chin for the Garden Corporation.

Tom Heeney

As a matter of fact, Tex didn't want to put on the match. He thought it was bringing the colorless Tunney back too quickly after his victory over a great fallen idol and the public, fickle always, wouldn't go for the bout in a big way. Heeney was hand-picked because the ever-careful Tunney was doing the picking.

Heeney didn't rate the bout, but Tex accepted it in the hope that some twist of fate would bring home Heeney a winner.

In that event, Tex would have his European wedge. He would bring Dempsey over to Europe to fight for his lost title, and, at last, would come the bout at which Tex hoped to seat all of the royalty and wealth of Europe, including King George, himself.

Tex talked of a Heeney victory so loudly and so often that he finally began to believe it himself. I'm afraid, although I was suspicious because I never had heard him telling the boys that any man would win.

But it wasn't to be. His dream of a European match for Dempsey went a-glimmering when Heeney was stopped.

TUNNEY QUITS RING

Then Tex got another jolt. Poor as he was as a box office attraction, Tex got a great shock when Tunney told him a few days before the fight that it was to be his last. He would retire and never fight again.

There was nothing for Tex to do but accept it as final.

Tex took his losses in that fight without batting an eye. I suppose he figured that he had to lose some time. A man can't keep on "passing" forever. He's going to toss that old "seven" sooner or later.

I think that when Tex started off for Miami on the last trip he was to take in this life he had made up his mind to draw away from Madison Square Garden and to live the life of Reilly. He had about as much cash as he wanted to have on earth. He had sold his Garden stock at a nice profit and was just beginning to weary of the wear and tear of putting on record-breaking shows.

With Dempsey gone, Tex knew that he was through. "A Dempsey comes only once in a lifetime," he said one day, and I looked up to see his face hard set and an expression of resignation about it which had never been there before.

You well can imagine what the downfall of Dempsey meant to Tex. It had taken him 10 years to bring Jack along to the "three million dollar gate" stage, and, with his crumpling, Rickard seemed to crumple also.

GARDEN'S INGRATITUDE

Tex lost interest in his projects and, when he and Dempsey formed some sort of an alliance concerning a big gambling casino at Miami, I think Tex just about decided he was through with Madison Square Garden.

He was willing to step down if there was anyone around the place who thought his triumphs could be duplicated by another man.

There was one thing for which he never would have stood. There was talk, and loud talk, of the corporation casting Tex adrift. One faction was fighting the other among those millionaires who sought to control the Garden.

Had they "fired" Tex, then they would have seen his smoke, and no mistake. He was a fighter from his heels up, and, knowing that the public would have stuck to him, he would have put up a battle they never would have forgotten.

That battle would have meant that Tex, incensed at the injustice of the ouster, immediately would have organized a new company to build a new Garden twice the size of the present edifice. It was one of Rickard's dreams to erect an enclosed arena capable of housing 200,000 people! He never said much about it to the newspaper boys. The time wasn't ripe, but I know he wanted to bring the Army and Navy football game in out of the rain. He wanted to put such spectacles as the Dempsey and Tunney bouts under a roof. Had the present Garden management pitchforked Tex out into the street, they would have had a Bengel tiger on their hands. There was little sentiment in Rickard's makeup when it came to business and he could hate more deeply than any man with whom I ever have come in contact.

BIG PROFIT BELITTLED

It is best for all concerned that Tex was not driven to starting an opposition arena. One would have annihilated the other. New York, great as it is, can't support two such places.

Rickard's success with other people's money was something that would have attracted any sound business man in Wall street. If the famous "Six Hundred Millionaires" thought they could get along without Tex, there were certain to be 1,200 other millionaires who would have backed Tex in a new concern.

When Tex turned in a profit of $551,135 to his corporation after the bills had been paid for the Dempsey and Tunney bout at Chicago, the greedy corporation beefed its head off. A gate of $2,658,660 and only $551,135 for the poor millionaires! Why, wasn't that terrible? How they did squawk!

This was the official statement—as recorded in Frank G. Menke's record book:

Tunney's share (a record)	$ 900,000
Dempsey's share (a record for a loser)	450,000
Federal tax	265,866
State tax	241,659
Rental for stadium	100,000
Incidental expenses	150,000
	$2,107,525

LOSS REALIZED

The Six Hundred Millionaires, or that portion of them that backed the corporation with their money and one man's worries, seemed to forget that Tex had to have that tremendous "nut" on his hands before a dollar could be counted on the profit side. It was about this time that rumors of discontent among the directors of the Garden were heard.

I have no way of knowing whether or not the Madison Square Garden Corporation intended to drop its great pilot. I do know that the same corporation would gladly present Tex Rickard the "Three Million" which he failed to draw in life if they only could have him back!

SOUTH HILLS, SCHENLEY SET FOR BATTLE

Probable Lineup

Schenley		South Hills
Schmidt	F	Currie
Cates	F	Metz
Crum	C	Gehring
Mihm	G	Rigg
Friedman	G	Reagan

The annual series for the championship of the City League and Duquesne University's third annual state Catholic high school title tourney get under way here today, supporting attractions to the W. P. I. A. L. championship elimination tourney, which winds up first round competition in the Pitt Stadium tonight.

In the City League tussle, South Hills, almost perennial leader in Section II, and Schenley, representing Section I, battle in the first of a three-game series in the Stadium this afternoon. Schenley dethroned Fifth Avenue as Section I ruler, defeating Westinghouse in a play-off game for the section title. Fifth won the league title last year.

LINEUPS INTACT

Both schools have their regular lineups available for this afternoon's tussle. South Hills will depend on the Currie-Metz-Gehring-Rigg-Regan combination. Schenley has an ace in Crum, and dependable support in Joe Mihm, Cates, Schmidt and Bernie Friedman.

The second game of the series will be played next Tuesday, and if a third tussle is necessary, it will be played next Friday.

The Catholic tourney will get under way at 2 o'clock this afternoon, four games being on the card for today. In the first game, the Duke Preps meet the defending champion, Altoona Catholic. At 3 o'clock, St. Titus, of Titusville, meets West Philadelphia Central Catholic, of Pittsburgh, meets St. Catherine's, of Dubois, at 4 o'clock, and in the fourth game, at 5 o'clock, St. Joseph's, of Ashland, Pa., engages Mt. St. Mary's.

The semi-final tussles will be played tomorrow afternoon and the final tomorrow night.

DUKES, THIEL CLASH

The Duquesne University varsity will wind up its home season tonight playing Thiel in a return game on the Bluff court. The Dukes defeated the Lutherans in a close game in Greenville earlier in the season.

After tonight's tussle, the local college five will have only one game remaining on the card, with Grove City at Grove City next week.

Duquesne		Thiel
Abele	F	Harter
Benedict	F	Clarke
McGeever	C	Frampton
Stephens (C)	G	Bell
Parry	G	McCoy

Officials—Cal Bolster, referee; Al Black, umpire.

MIAMI, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—Sam Lampe, manager of one of the preliminary fighters at the Carnera-Maloney show here last night, was arrested by a deputy United States marshal after the fight on a federal liquor warrant issued in Baltimore. Lampe was indicted in Baltimore on 32 counts charging violation of the national prohibition act. He posted bond of $5,000 pending arraignment tomorrow.

Four Schools Win In Floor Tourney

Monday Conroy will oppose Stevens and Rogers plays Woolslair. Forbes will meet the winner of the Rogers-Woolslair game and Beltzhoover will meet the Conroy-Stevens victor on Thursday.

BUC YANS BATTLE REGULARS TOMORROW

REAL ACTION EXPECTED IN FIRST GAME

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, Cal., March 6.—The many fine workouts in the Pirate camp in the past 10 days are expected to crystallize tomorrow afternoon when Manager Jewel Ens throws his Yanigans at his Regulars in the first game of the preparatory season.

The initial is expected to be fought with exciting action, for many players are close to midsummer condition on top of one of the most successful training seasons any club has enjoyed in recent years.

Ens stated this morning the camp would feature competition from this point until the Buccos pull up stakes for points north. On Sunday there will be a surplus of baseball, the Buccos to participate in battles here and at Monterey, training site of the San Francisco Seals. The Seal Firsts will journey to Paso Robles to take on the Pirate Regulars. Meantime, the Yans will be journeying to the famed resort town for some action with the Baby Seals.

BUCS MAY REST

Owing to the abundance of baseball on Sunday, Ens may call a halt on the competition on the following day, but he plans contests for the other days of next week. And, if there is a shortage of baschits, Ens will not attribute the scarcity entirely to the new ball. The prevailing rocket may not be punished with the severity noted in the past few years, but Jewel is aware that he has a flock of pitchers who are just about ready to step out—and this goes for his regular sharpshooters.

There is much sadness in camp today, owing to the permanent absence of Pitcher Steve Swetonic, who is on his way to Pittsburgh, a sad Pirate. Steve was ordered back home, where he will submit to an operation on his pitching elbow. Chipped bones made the surgical treatment necessary and the North Side youth probably is lost for three months.

REGAN SPRAINS ANKLE

Swetonic's injury came as a severe blow to Manager Ens. Steve was heavier than he has yet been and had visions of a big season. In the middle of the last campaign, the native son was struck down with appendicitis.

Bill Regan, the other Pittsburgh boy in the camp of the Buccos, is in bed with a badly sprained ankle, but progress is reported so far as Bill's ailment is concerned. It is likely he will be able to resume the workouts before the club breaks camp.

Larry French remains a stubborn holdout and Adam Comorosky and Paul Waner are still missing from camp. The latter two, however, are expected to report soon. French's future as a Pirate seems to hang in the balance.

GIRLS REACH FINALS

KAMP ILLINOIS LEADER

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., March 6. (AP.)—E. R. (Babe) Kamp, of Mt. Carmel, was elected captain of the University of Illinois basketball team of next season at the annual banquet last night. Kamp has shared the forward duties with Burr Harper for two seasons and won two letters.

W. VA. EVENTS UNDER WAY

BUCKHANNON, W. Va., March 6.—(AP.)—More than a thousand eager high school athletes figuratively are toeing the mark today, awaiting the starting guns sending them off once more in the annual race for state high school basketball championship honors.

They were gathered in 16 centers in the state, ready for a two-day struggle, today and tomorrow. With the end of play tomorrow night will be revealed the 16 teams to meet in the gymnasium of West Virginia Wesleyan College here on March 20 and 21, to settle for another year who shall be cock-o'-the-walk of high school basketball in this state.

VISITATIONS WIN

NEW YORK, March 6.—(AP.)—The Brooklyn Visitations have taken a one-game lead over Ft. Wayne in their play-off series for the American Professional Basketball League championship. The Visitations, first-half champions, whipped the Hoosiers, 14-10, in the opening contest last night.

RENAISSANCE MEETS LOCAL CHAMPIONS

By JULIUS LEVIN

For the second straight day independent games take the play away from league attractions in local basketball circles tonight. Two of the main drawing cards will be the Fintex-Renaissance battle at the South Side Market House and the Miele-Irene Kaufmann Settlement House battle at the Settlement House floor.

The Fintex-Renaissance contest especially is expected to draw a packed house of basketball enthusiasts, as the New York Negro passers always have rated with the strongest professional quintets in the country. The easterners were one of the few teams to defeat the original New York Celtics, former world champions, when they were in their prime.

In meeting the Mieles, the Settlement House quintet is opposing a sectional rival and a great battle is promised the followers of the two clubs. The Mieles made a fairly good showing in the Allegheny County League. In the preliminary to this attraction the I. K. S. Wagner Institutional League champions clash with the Epiphany Lutheran passers.

The Penn Five of Sharpsburg, meets the North Side Buicks in a West Penn League contest, while St. Cassimir opposes St. John and St. Wendelin clashes with St. James in the Catholic Lyceum League.

The Jeannette Felders knocked off I. K. S. 46-41, and Y. M. H. A. defeated Lorain Ex-Hy, 32-30, in important independent contests. Y. M. H. A. Reserves, P. A. A., Manchester, McCleary, Duke Five, Goodwill and Holy Trinity also turned in victories.

Semi-Finals Reached In Mercer Tourney

GROVE CITY, Pa., March 6.—(AP.)—Greenville and Grove City high schools advanced to the semi-finals in the Mercer County Class A tournament last night. Greenville defeated Mercer, 25 to 17, and Grove City downed Jamestown, 20 to 16. Sharpsville and Farrell will meet in the first semi-final game tonight and Grove City will oppose Greenville in the other.

never had a chance to get started. Edwards, Patrick, Rapchak and Konjolka laid down a veritable barrage of shots, plopping seven goals and a foul for 15 big points and went confidently into the final quarter with a 30-23 lead and apparently, the ball game.

All this time, Scottdale's No. 21, Eddie Camlin, a frail looking forward, had been silent. The fourth quarter was his quarter, and in just about the time it takes to recite it, he had taken four shots at the hoop and scored as many baskets, three of them on long heaves and one on a fine follow-up under the net. With Eicher added one to match a goal made by Konjolka, the aspect of things was greatly changed, but Scottdale still trailed by a point. Then came Rush's thrilling play and goal and the departure of Brownsville's hopes.

EICHER BIG SCORER

Eicher was the leading scorer of the game, with seven field goals and two fouls for 16 points, a new high for the tourney. Edwards, the Brownsville forward, was close behind with six goals and both Camlin and Rush, of Scottdale, and Patrick, of Brownsville, had four. It was Edwards who put Brownsville ahead with two goals in rapid succession in the third period and his basket in the final period came mighty close to winning the game for his team.

A bit more skill in the art of freezing the ball and less ambition to score when it held a safe lead and Brownsville would have been looking forward today to a second round trial with Johnny Reed's Scott team. At it is, Mose Lantz, the smiling Scottie mentor, has this pleasant worry on his mind. The lineup:

Scottdale—35.		Brownsville—34.
Eicher	F	Patrick
Camlin	F	Edwards
Rush	C	Rapchak
Conway	G	Konjolka
Stauffer	G	Youhouse

Score by periods—

Scottdale	12	11	0	12—35
Brownsville	10	5	15	4—34

Substitutes—Scottdale: Miller, Jazewski, Lindsay. Brownsville: McClellan, Field goals—Eicher 7, Camlin 4, Rush 4, Stauffer, Patrick 4, Edwards 6, Rapchak, Konjolka 3, Youhouse. Fouls—Eicher, 2 out of 4, Camlin, 1 out of 2, Rush, 0 out of 1, Miller, 0 out of 1, Patrick, 1 out of 6, Edwards, 0 out of 1, Konjolka, 2 out of 2, Youhouse, 1 out of 3.

Referee—Irish Brickley. Umpire—Herklotz.

DUQUESNE COPS

Duquesne—24.		N. Braddock—22.
Wasko	F	Racne
Kocheran	F	Gross
Jresenesky	C	Alesicus
Cabrelchia	G	Michaels
Bronka	G	Hriska

Field goals, Aurstory 2, Wasko 4, Jresenesky, Cabrelchia, Kocheran, Racne 5, Gross, Michaels, Hriska, Fouls, Duquesne, 6 out of 12, North Braddock, 8 out of 18. Referee, Beggs Snyder.

MANOS VICTOR OVER SMITH

The defending champion, Theos Manos, of Keystone A. C., retained his title in defeating his clubmate, Frank Smith, in the final Allegheny Mountain Association, A. A. U., senior handball championship tourney, on K. A. C. courts, yesterday. Smith took Manos an extra set before he went down to defeat, the scores being 8-21, 21-8, 21-4, 21-9.

Frank Smith

The decisive win of Smith in the first game was a distinct surprise to the champion, who, however, recovered and went on to win.

The senior doubles handball championship opens on the same courts next week, being held in conjunction with the city squash racquets singles championship tourney, which started this afternoon.

CHILDREN FLEE FIRE IN HOME

Fire in the two-story frame home of George H. Kelly, at 3126 Sacramento street, Sheraden, routed several of his children last night. The fire broke out during the absence of the parents. Firemen, summoned by neighbors, extinguished the flames which started from a defective flue in the basement and estimated the damage at $500.

East End firemen late yesterday fought a blaze on the third floor of a brick dwelling at 919 Heberton avenue, for more than an hour after it had been discovered by Mrs. Catherine C. Jones, who occupied the second and third floors of the house. The lower floor is tenanted by R. E. Vogel, who was absent at the time. Mrs. Jones, the only person in the house, ran into the street and spread an alarm when she discovered the fire. The damage was estimated at $3,000.

The cart was seized by prohibition agents while being used by Paul Fontanelli and Carlowski, August 22, 1930, in transporting six cases of home brew beer in Mulberry way. The two men pleaded guilty Monday in Federal Court to a charge of unlawful transportation and were fined $150 each.

Win Big Men by Sharing Net Profits

By B. C. FORBES

TWO IMPORTANT companies yesterday announced profit-sharing plans. Modern business is swiftly moving in that direction. Why? For two main reasons:

Mr. Forbes

First, because of the phenomenal success achieved by different large enterprises under the driving power of executives paid according to results—profit sharing.

Second, because profit-sharing corporations now command the pick of American business brains. The biggest men now want something more than a fixed salary to work for. Profit sharing gives them the feeling that they are on their own, that they must make good in order to make good money. The sportiness of the proposition appeals to them. It injects a certain spirit of adventure.

Kroger Grocery and Baking Company announces that it is setting aside 100,000 common shares for purchase by officials and employes. The most successful chain stores have found that their main problem is man power, how to train store managers and how to enthuse them to achieve notable results.

The late Frank Woolworth told me that the main secret of his success was his giving each store manager an interest in the profits of his store. He had foresight enough to realize the wisdom of such a policy long before profit sharing came into vogue. Kroger has 5,165 stores.

THE PURITY Bakeries Corporation has just organized a management corporation patterned, apparently, on General Motors' profit-sharing plan. If and when $6 a share is earned on Purity Bakeries stock, 2½ per cent of the net earnings will go to the management corporation. If more than $8 a share is earned for stockholders, the management corporation will receive $80,000 annually for each additional dollar a share netted for stockholders. The management corporation will invest its funds in Purity stock.

I find that our biggest bankers and financiers are turning more and more to offering a profit interest to attract the men they want to take charge of important enterprises.

TALKING ABOUT the wider distribution of wealth, the author of a book on common stocks writes me:

"I have just received a letter from a working man who, in these times, is buying stocks. We are so much obsessed at present with the unemployed (and properly so) that we are forgetting the quite large number of workmen who are enjoying the maintained wage, also the lowering cost of living, and are actually better off than ever. As this man's letter shows, they are even buying stocks, like the wise men they often are."

This workman owns Standard Oil of New Jersey, National Bisquit, General Electric and U. S. Electric Light and Power. He has saved another thousand dollars and leans towards New York bank shares.

"Anyone who knocks high wages and short hours, is wrong. Give us high wages, short hours and low cost of living. All this is very easy to do. Anybody who contends to the contrary is not properly informed or else they are deliberately selfish and unfair. Henry Ford says everything is too high except wages. He is absolutely right. Prices should be still further reduced, about 25 per cent.

"Why don't you take up the cudgels for labor occasionally? Don't you know that labor is being treated terribly shabbily and that no real permanent progress can be made until labor is properly and fairly considered? Men of 50 and beyond are being cut loose from payrolls. Do you consider this fair, just and right? What in the world is to become of them? Give a thought, man, give a thought.

"You don't say anything more about the price of coal. It is still $13.75 cash for a 2,000-pound-ton in this section. I wish you would try to influence some of your coal baron friends to cut the price a little."

That covers a lot of territory. Just one point: I'd be astonished did I have even one "coal baron friend," for no writer in America has trounced the coal owners more outspokenly than I have during the last many years. I have always regarded the coal industry, by and large, as the worst-managed in America.

OIL PRICE CUT EXTENDED

DALLAS, March 6.—Magnolia Petroleum Company (Standard Oil of New York) has reduced Mid-Continent crude oil prices, meeting the cuts made by Stanolind Crude Oil Purchasing Company. The cut ranged up to 43 cents a barrel. Other leading companies followed suit.

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 6.—In an effort to prevent sharp declines in crude oil prices in the Oklahoma and Mid-Continent fields, the State Corporation Commission has rescinded its oral order of Wednesday increasing Oklahoma City field's allowable oil output to 150,000 barrels daily from 125,000.

R. S. Ellison, president of the Stanolind company, refused to say if the Stanolind concern would post a higher price of crude oil in view of the reversal of the commission's order. Mr. Ellison said:

"If the recission of the order would tend to take up an apparent surplus of oil all over the country, then Stanolind might very conceivably post a higher price. However, there is no indication now that it will."

CASPER, March 6.—Prices of Wyoming crude oil have been reduced following changes in the Mid-Continent. New prices of Salt Creek crude range from 45 cents to 61 cents a barrel. Other grades were cut 35 cents. The cuts are criticised by independent producers.

FINDLAY, O., March 6.—(AP.)—The Ohio Oil Company today announced reduction in prices on six grades of Centra' West crude oil.

Illinois, 80 cents, off 50 cents; Princeton, 80 cents, off 50 cents; Lima, 90 cents, off 20 cents; Indiana, 50 cents, off 37 cents; Wooster, 99 cents, off 36 cents; Western Kentucky, 75 cents, off 40 cents.

The company announced that it has discontinued its market price posting on Plymouth, Ill., crude, as production in that field has been curtailed.

Pennsy Coal Rate Increase Denied

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The Interstate Commerce Commission denied an application by the Pennsylvania Railroad to increase its rates for transportation of pulverized coal from points in the Pittsburgh and Johnstown areas to New England destinations.

The railroad had proposed increasing the present rate by varying amounts from 8½ to 10½ cents per 100 pounds.

MARKET SWAYS ON ZIG-ZAG COURSE

Stocks Rise at Opening, Tumble, Advance Only to Dip Again in Afternoon

NEW YORK, March 6 (AP.)—Trading in the stock market degenerated into a knock-down-and-drag-out battle between the bulls and bears today, with bears appearing to have a decided edge for the moment.

The market advanced a point or two in the early trading, dropped about 1 to 15 in the middle of the day, then recovered 1 to 4 in the early afternoon only to start down again. During the decline, pool support appeared to have been temporarily withdrawn from some of the recent spectacular risers, and some of the high-priced issues were subjected to concentrated bear selling.

The early upturn represented a continuance of the bullish activity in the utilities and steels. Auburn, however, dropped steadily during the morning, getting down almost 15 points. It recovered 4, and again declined.

The crop of adverse dividend announcements this week smoothed the way for the bears, although virtually all of the reductions or omissions have been expected in Wall street for some time. Omission of the payments on American Rolling Mill common and Postal Telegraph preferred were among the latest.

The oils were rather heavily sold in response to the latest declines in Mid-Continent crude prices.

News that Secretary of Commerce Lamont had obtained cooperation from the Gulf and Standard of New Jersey interests in an effort to regulate imports was mildly favorable, although oil circles felt that the situation was still too confused to offer tangible encouragement, several of the so-called independents were disappointed that Congress failed to act to restrict imports.

MORE RESERVE CREDIT CUT

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(AP.)—The daily average volume of Federal Reserve Bank credit outstanding during the week ending March 4 as reported by the Federal Reserve Banks was $921.-000,000, an increase of $8,000,000 compared with the preceding week and a decrease of $242,000,000 compared with the corresponding week in 1930.

The Federal Reserve Board reported that on March 4 total reserve bank credit amounted to $908,000,000, an increase of $4.-000,000 for the week. This increase corresponds with an increase of $6,000,000 in money in circulation and a decrease of $22,000,000 in treasury currency, offset in part by an increase of $9,000,000 in monetary gold stock and decrease of $13,000,000 in member bank reserve balances and $2,000,000 in unexpended capital funds, etc.

Holdings of discounted bills declined $2,000,000 each at the Federal Reserve banks of Cleveland and Atlanta and increased $6.-000,000 at the San Francisco bank, all Federal Reserve banks combined showing a small increase for the week. The system's holdings of bills bought in open market decreased $5,000,000 and of treasury notes $15,000,000, while holdings of treasury certificates and bills increased $14,000,000.

LOANS DECLINE $8,000,000

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Loans on stocks and bonds to brokers and dealers by reporting Federal Reserve Member Banks in New York City decreased $8.-000,000 during the week ended March 4 to $1,790,000,000. This compares with $1,798,000,000 in the preceding week and the record high of $6,804,000,000 on October 2, 1929.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, March 6.—Grain prices averaged higher today influenced by rough weather likely to hamper the movement of corn. Announcement that President Hoover had accepted the resignation of Alexander Legge, chairman of the Federal Farm Board, had no apparent market effect. Opening at ⅛ cent off to ⅜ cent up, corn later scored all around gains. Wheat started at ¼ cent decline to ¼ cent advance and afterward tended upward.

Sugar Market.

NEW YORK, March 6.—Raw sugar was quiet today and in absence of business prices were unchanged at 3.25 for spot duty paid.

The refined situation was unsettled but the announcement that the contemplated advance by some of the refiners to the basis of 4.50 for 0-6 from the present 4.35 never would not become effective the 6th demand and only a light inquiry was reported.

Wall Street Discussing Earnings Reports for First Quarter

Wall street is already beginning to discuss the probable showing of first-quarter results, though such statements are still a month or more in the offing. Action naturally in looking over the situation in that direction is there is little to be found which might be expected to support or create much in the way of bullish enthusiasm in the speculative market. Conditions in the steel industry, it was pointed out, can only be interpreted as suggesting that the statements of those companies covering the March quarter will be found severely disappointing. It is being estimated unofficially that the results of the two leading units, namely the Steel corporation and Bethlehem Steel will run under net shown for the final quarter of last year. In the March period of 1930 the Steel corporation earned $3.44 a share and Bethlehem showed net equal to $2.60 a share.

Banks put through a rather heavy loan call in the forenoon yesterday will the result that the situation in the demand money market was quite stringent and the official rate rose to 2 per cent. It was estimated that upward of $40,000,000 was drawn out of the market by banks to provide for their needs in connection with the $100.-000,000 City of New York bond issue, and the taking down of governmental deposits by the Treasury Department. Some further calling today also was being anticipated, with much depending on the extent to which the aforementioned city loan finds reflection in bank deposits.

It became increasingly apparent during yesterday that the speculative fraternity leans favorably toward the public utility shares as the most promising medium of bullish speculation for the present. One reason for this is found perhaps in the fact that utility earnings held up much better relatively through the last 18 months or so than those of companies in most other lines. Then again with Congress adjourned and the New York state legislature slated to end its session in a few weeks, there is less to be feared in the way of disturbing legislation directed against these companies. As a matter of fact with Congress out the utilities have nothing to fear from that direction before next December.

One of the sharpest cuts in crude oil prices posted in recent years was put into force by the purchasing subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. The cut, amounting to 40 cents a barrel on high gravity oil, establishes a price of 67 cents a barrel in Kansas, Oklahoma, and also in North and North Central Texas. This slash brings the Indiana company's price down to the figure offered by the Sinclair interests some weeks ago. The news was without much influence on the oil stocks yesterday, though it indicates clearly that the problem of inventory adjustment, which was thought left behind only a short time ago, is still a factor to be reckoned with by the industry.

Wall street got something in the way of a pleasant surprise in the form of an announcement of the regular quarterly dividend on American Steel Foundry common. Report had been current that the board would vote a reduction to a $2 annual basis, but at their meeting yesterday directors voted the regular quarterly payment of 75 cents a share due at this time. The company reported net profits equivalent to $2.37 a share on the stock for the last year, against $4.70 a share in 1929, and in consequence there was a deficit of $621,098 after payment of the regular dividends. But its financial position was decidedly strong with substantial holdings of cash or equivalent and with inventories under the three-year average. Accumulated surplus stood at $13.-427,970, against $14,027,234 the year before.

Business has improved over the last few weeks, but no big gains have been reported by any line of industry. Some say the betterment is seasonal, and that the stock market will wait until it is seen whether or not the gain will carry through. That may not be known until the close of the current month. However, confidence seems to be gaining daily. One constructive development is the improved banking position. Scores of banks that were closed are reopening, and one hears of very few bank failures.

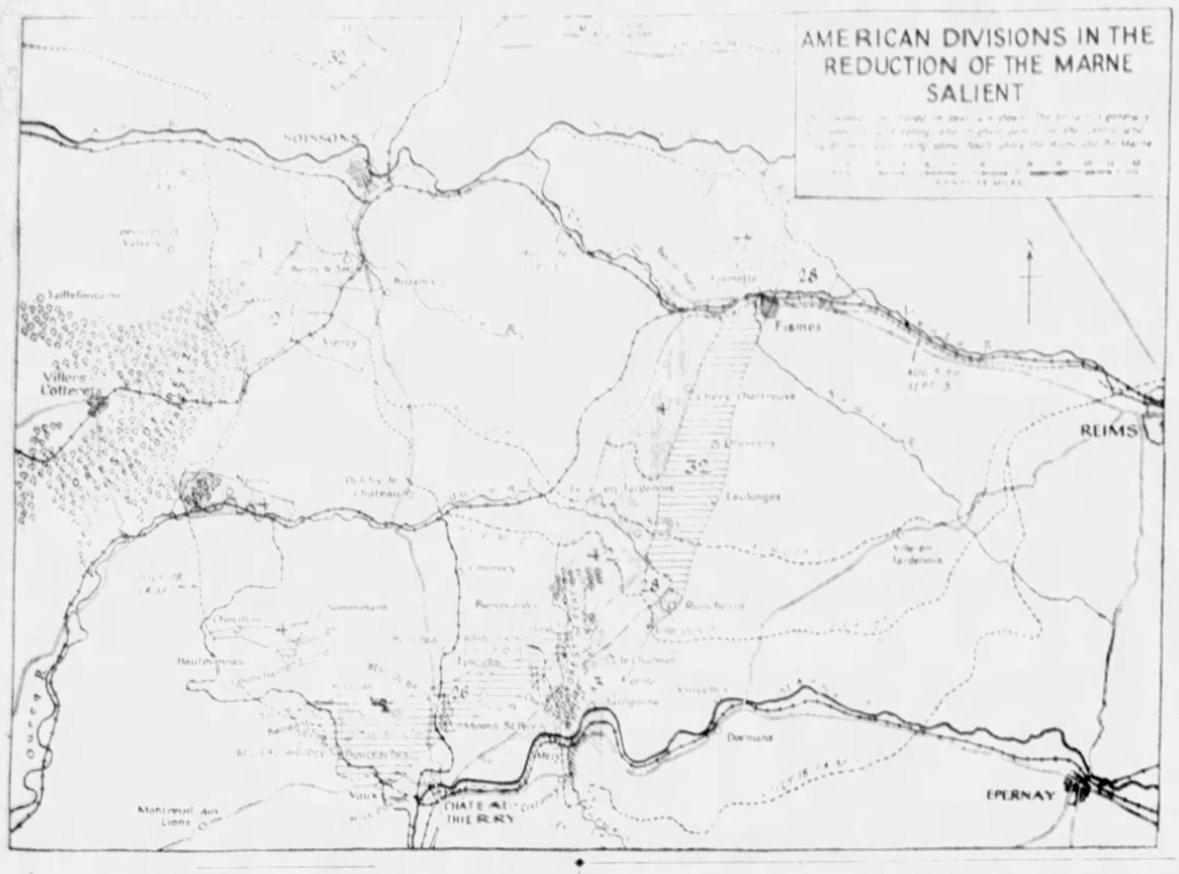
MY EXPERIENCES IN THE WORLD WAR

By GEN. JOHN J. PERSHING



Pennsylvania Troops Abandoned Under Fire By Retreating French

The enemy's defeat in front of the 20th Corps (American 1st and 2d Divisions and 1st Moroccan Division) was the principal cause of the withdrawal of his armies, but he fought desperately from position to position and his retirement was being skillfully conducted to save men and material from capture.

In the counter-offensive of July 18 no operations were ordered for French or American troops east of Chateau Thierry, leaving them an opportunity to readjust their lines. On the 20th, patrols from the 3d Division discovered that the Germans had withdrawn across the Marne the night before, and the division at once advanced its line to the river.

The night of July 20 the Germans further withdrew to the line Charteves-Ridge north of Mont St. Pere, connecting with their line of resistance in front of our First Corps.

Enemy Routed

July 21 the 5th Brigade crossed the Marne in pursuit, capturing Mont St. Pere and driving machine guns out of Charteves. The 6th Brigade waited for the bridge to be completed at Mezy and the morning of the 22d one regiment crossed the river and captured Jaulgonne.

The Germans were contesting every step, and while the 1st Battalion of this regiment reached Le Charmel it was compelled to retire by successive positions to Jaulgonne.

On the 26th, operations planned in co-operation with the French 39th and the American 42d on its left were only partially successful. The 42d captured the strongly held Croix Rouge Farm, but the French 39th Division could not advance.

The leading battalions of the 5th Brigade entered Le Charmel, but not being able to debouch from the town they were withdrawn after dark. During the night the hard-pressed Germans retired to the Ourcq, leaving machine guns behind to delay our advance.

July 27 the French 39th Division took up the pursuit followed by the 55th Brigade, 28th Division, which relieved the French 39th that night at Courmont. The 5th Brigade, 3d Division, advanced on the right to protect this movement and occupied a line running southeast from Courmont through Villardelle.

During the morning of the 28th, the 5th Brigade captured Roncheres, and the 28th Division reached the Ourcq, but was unable to hold its gains north of the river. On the 29th the 3d Division occupied an irregular line beyond Roncheres, but neither that unit nor the 28th Division on its left was able to make material progress against the Bois des Grimpettes that day.

Casualities Enormous

The 3d Division was relieved by the 32nd on the 30th, and retired south of the Marne. It had taken a decisive part in stopping the last German offensive and had advanced 10 miles through difficult country stubbornly defended by the enemy. It had suffered casualties to the number of about 6,000 officers and men.

The 42d Division, as we have seen, had come from the French Fourth Army to the Marne salient and had relieved the 26th Division in the First Corps. In the advance that followed it had gallantly captured Croix Rouge Farm on the 26th, and on the following day had cleared the Foret de Fere, captured Villers-sur-Fere and had reached the Ourcq.

July 28, the 42d established a line beyond the Ourcq, and captured Sergy, while the latter took Seringes-et-Nesles.

The enemy made a determined stand along the Ourcq River, and some of the hardest fighting of the period occurred at this time. August 3, the 4th Division relieved the 42d.

The Third Corps (Bullard) with the American 28th and 32d Divisions, relieved the French 38th Corps on the right of our First Corps. Once established beyond the Ourcq, our two corps advanced rapidly toward the Vesle River, meeting with little opposition.

We had in all nine American divisions, equal to 18 French divisions, engaged in this second Battle of the Marne. This force, together with the staff, supply, medical troops and aviation, amounted to a total force of nearly 300,000 actively employed during that period. We suffered 65,000 casualties.

American Boys Trapped

July 20, I visited the commanders of our units engaged and found all roads west of the salient greatly congested. No one who has not been an eye witness to traffic conditions during the progress of a great modern battle can visualize the congestion that usually exists immediately behind the lines.

One of the most difficult problems is to regulate circulation over the roads and keep them from becoming seriously blocked. This is especially the case at night, when vehicles travel without lights and when frequent halts are apt to occur through accidents of various sorts.

Going from there to the 28th Division (Muir), farther to the east, I found that several companies of its 55th Brigade, through some misinterpretation of instructions, had been assigned to French battalions and were serving in the front lines at the time of the attack on the fifteenth.

The French gave way before the German assault, but our companies which had not been told that the French were retiring gallantly held their positions and as a result found themselves surrounded and only fought their way to the rear under the greatest difficulties. This was another striking illustration of the danger of having our small units serve in Allied divisions.

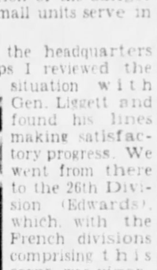
Going on to the headquarters of the 1st Corps I reviewed the situation with Gen. Liggett and found his lines making satisfactory progress. We went from there to the 26th Division (Edwards), which, with the French divisions comprising this corps, was vigorously attacking the enemy, who was stubbornly fighting to cover his retirement.

Gen. Liggett

While traveling northward through the forest of Villers-Cotterets it was almost impossible to make any headway over the badly cut up road filled with columns moving in both directions. In the middle of the forest, at the main cross-roads, I met Gen. Mangin, the army commander, trudging along on foot, followed by his automobile, which was working its way through the jam of troops, artillery, wagons, trucks and ambulances, including some with wounded.

Our Troops Praised

Although we talked but a moment, it was long enough for him to speak in high praise of the brilliant dash of the American divisions under his command. In moving on toward the front we soon found ourselves at the command post of the 1st Division, sheltered in an underground quarry west of Couvres.



Col. King

The Chief of Staff, Col. Campbell King, gave me a full account of the fighting and explained the division's position. Leaving a message of congratulations for Summerall, who was still somewhere on the battlefield, we proceeded on our journey.

Arriving later at Taillefontaine, we located Gen. Bullard, who, much to his regret and my own, had not been able to organize his 3d Corps staff in time to take command of our 1st and 2d Divisions in this attack but he was just as elated over their work as if he had commanded them himself.

En route from there to the 2d Division, which had just been withdrawn from the line, we passed the Scottish 15th Division going toward the front to relieve our 1st.

At the headquarters of the 2d we saw Gen Harbord, who always wore his tin hat, and his Chief of Staff, Gen. Preston Brown, both in fine spirits.

They could hardly find words to express their enthusiasm over the achievements of the division, and I was happy to congratulate them on its splendid conduct. I recall saying to Harbord that even though the 1st and 2nd Divisions should never fire another shot, they had made themselves and their commanders immortal.

My diary notes the following:

"Paris, Sunday, July 21, 1928. Saw Petain this morning. He said that all French commanders were enthusiastic over American troops. Held conference with him about employment of other divisions and reached an agreement which we jointly presented to Foch this afternoon. "This being Belgian National Holiday, I telegraphed the greetings of the A. E. F. to His Majesty, the King, commanding the Belgian Army.

King Albert

"Chemical Warfare Service organization officially approved."

With every new demonstration of the efficiency of Americans in battle the French became louder in their praise, and it looked as though there would be no objection to the formation of an American army as soon as the various elements could be assembled.

In talking it over with General Petain, as noted in my diary, I proposed anew that we should now take positive steps to plan for a purely American sector, perhaps near Chateau Thierry, or at some other active part of the front, with a quiet sector of our own where we could send exhausted divisions from the battle line for rest and recuperation and where untrained divisions could go for preliminary line experience.

Moreover, it was very important that a sector be chosen at once, in order to plan definitely the necessary installations. To all this he agreed in principle.

I told him I expected to take command of the American First Army when organized, and that, while retaining entire independence as to plans and conduct of operations, it seemed best in the beginning to place our army on the same footing as the French armies to secure their full co-operation.

Anxious for Command

The practical effect of this would be that the French would handle many intricate questions concerning the civil population behind the lines, and would feel under obligations to provide French artillery, aviation, truck transportation and tanks, much of which we lacked, and which could be supplied and managed efficiently only by the most intimate co-ordination between the French and ourselves.

In the first appearance of an American army beside the Allied armies it was clearly my place to take personal command, which I was now in position to do, as our problems of supply were soon to be under efficient direction that would largely relieve me from the necessity of constant supervision. Furthermore, it accorded with my own personal desire from the purely military point of view.

Regarding the rest sector, we agreed that it could be on the southern side of the St. Mihiel salient for the present, both of us having in mind our previous plan to make this the active American front later.

With the understanding that we should limit our conversation with Gen. Foch and not go into details about the future, we went to see him at Bombon and laid the proposal before him. After some discussion and assurance from Gen. Petain, he agreed to think the matter over and let me know.

Her Conscience Begins to Disturb Mary Lou

CHAPTER XIX.

Mary Lou thought hard and fast. Then she let him have it, her own Mary Lou-ish convictions, her complete and truthful opinion of the boy and girl love affair. She spoke in the person of Delight Harford, but whether the real Delight would have harbored such opinions Mary Lou neither knew nor cared.

"Look here, Lorry," she said, evenly, "we'll have this out . . . here and now. How old were you when we met? How old was I? A couple of crazy kids, thrown out of our normal stride by war, beglamored and bewildered. You were in a dangerous service, you'd had months of it, your number might be up at any time. I—I lived in an atmosphere of war-mad desperation, frivolity, despair, sorrow, hectic gayety, alternating, like moods. An epidemic, an air raid and my number might be up, too. Anyone was bound to fall in love, almost everyone did. You'd have fallen for the first pretty girl you saw, after your weeks at the front, and I with the first presentable man. And we were full of a lot of romantic ideas about snatching at happiness, because the next day might be our last—" She paused for breath and to her astonishment, Lorrimer nodded.

"Yes, you said just that," he told her, low. "I haven't forgotten, Delight."

Says He Loves Her

"That's how we all felt. It was—madness, it was like a curios nightmare, it wasn't real. Suppose you had found me, right after the war ended? You—you could easily have been disappointed, you could have easily fallen out of love, I, too! But because you didn't find me, because I was apparently lost to you, you built up all sorts of dreams and images about me. I'm not those dreams . . . I am not those images. I am myself! Not the same girl you knew 10 long years ago. If I remembered you, and I did, of course, it was with the same dreamlike quality in remembering. How long did we know each other . . . two weeks, three weeks? Was that sufficient time upon which to base or risk the happiness of two lives?"

"You couldn't have thought so, you didn't try very hard—" he began, stubbornly. But she saw, his color was beginning to return.

"To find you? I did try. I had my own life to live, Lorry, my own struggle to make. I thought you dead. I remembered you as—dead. But I went on living. We have to go on living. Then—chance brought me here. But you have no right to blame your condition on me. All very well to fall in love with a girl in a few days' time and make a fetish of her memory, but there's more in life than that—"

"Than—fidelity?" he wanted to know.

"Was it fidelity to me, as you remembered me, or a sort of fidelity of your vanity?" she flung at him. "You have made yourself into a legend of faithfulness . . . the few people who know, speak about you in awed tones—your mother, a vital, glowing, wonderful woman with years of happiness before her, has sacrificed herself to that fidelity of yours. Suppose—suppose you had never gone back to the front that time, suppose the war had ended, then and there? How happy would we have been, I wonder?"

"You can't ignore the fact that we are—married."

She had a wild impulse to cry out . . . Are we? Did you marry—her? Or is that part of your dream? Think! Try to remember! But she did not. She replied, merely:

"I do ignore it, I must. It is the only way to see light in this situation. I have your word. Your promise."

"I shall keep it," he said, heavily. "The day you come to me and tell me 'I admit your claim'—will be the first day I'll remind you of it. And if that day never comes, well, you can go free. We—we can get an annulment. But whether I am a fool or not, to be faithful, I—I love you, Delight," said Lorrimer.

Her heart leaped suddenly, sickeningly. She steadied her voice and forced her eyes to his own.

Make a Promise

"Do you?" she asked, risking a great deal for the sake of clear thinking. "do you love me, as I now am. I wonder, or are you forcing yourself to—sentimentality because of the girl I once was, whose memory, admit it, must have faded now, a little. I am changed, you have said so. I am not that girl, Lorry. Perhaps," said Mary Lou, "I never was."

After a moment, he said, thoughtfully:

"No, you're not that girl. That girl would never have spoken to me as you did, just now. That girl didn't, perhaps, think very much. She just—was—as sunshine is, as flowers are. Remember that day at Richmond, Delight. . . ? I do. . . .No, you are not that girl. But you are the girl I want. . . ." he ended.

She did not answer. She was suddenly faintly sick, vaguely giddy, tired to death of her masquerade, very near to tears and knew not why.

There was a little silence heavy with unspoken words.

"Look here," he said suddenly, "we'll make a bargain, you and I. Always be honest with me. Promise you'll come to me, if you find. . . that after all I am a little worthy of your caring . . . will you?"

She nodded. What else could she do?

"And I'll—" he tried to laugh—"I'll make an effort to 'snap out of it,' as suggested. I'll go with mother to that Christmas shindig of hers. And now," said Lorrimer, "shall we go look for the tree?"

She nodded again and as he held out his hand, put her own within it. He held it a long moment, hard, fast.

"You—speak your mind," he told her, smiling wryly. "I guess I've been pretty much of a damned fool. There isn't much room in this world for dreamers . . ." he said.

Mary Lou squeezed his hand hard, a second, and then released her own.

Afraid of Herself

"There's lots of room for dreamers," she told him, "but they are doers as well. Just dreaming," said Mary Lou, "get's you nowhere."

Later, she joined him in a heavy sweater, a green tam and stout boots over woolen stockings and a very short skirt. And they went out together in a snow flurry into the North Grove where, with Henderson's help, they picked out a tree, a tall, beautifully shaped majestic fir.

"It seems a shame to cut it down," said Mary Lou, a little sadly, "but—after all it will be a happy sort of death, with candles burning and people singing and somewhere a star shining . . . to remind us."

Lorrimer said nothing. His heart was sore and bruised from the impact of her hard, straightflung words. But he looked down now into her moved, flushed face and saw her eyes as radiant as the stars of which she spoke. Oh, she had changed! She was harder, in some way that he had to admit was fine, a hardness as of diamonds, yet she was softer, more easily touched by the more impersonal emotions. He could remember that other Delight as clinging and passionate one moment and glittering with bravado and gayety the next. This girl had gayety, but of a different kind; she had a reckless courage, but no bravado.

They tramped back to the house together, the soft, dry snow stinging their eyes, tangling in Mary Lou's escaping curls and thick on her long lashes. In the woods there was a gray gloom, soft as a dove's breast, faintly lit with the dreaming green of the living firs. Needles lay under foot, a fragrant carpet. Overhead, through bare branches and branches set with cones, the sky was a thick veil of gray . . . no wind stirred and their breath smoked on the frosty air.

A sense of well-being came to him suddenly. He made up his mind to several things, some of which he disliked. The mere experience of having reached decisions seemed somehow to give him a new vibrancy and strength. He caught Mary Lou's mittened hand in his own.

"Come and run," he bade her, "and get up an appetite for tea!"

They reached the house, wet and glowing and out of breath. Mrs. Lorrimer heard their noisy entrance. It was so good to have noise in that house again.

"I'll never admit," he whispered—but he was laughing a little, "that you were right—about a number of things. But, here and there, you hit it. I—I've snapped out of it," he told her . . . and . . . I'm grateful!"

Her heart leaped again. She'd always liked him, always pitied him, even when she had been most irritated and impatient with him. Lately both his spoken and silent love-making had begun to disturb her and her conscience had started to ache a little. Three hundred a month and the loveliest home, the best friend in the world—all very well, but she was taking it all for—a deception, for a lie's sake. And today, there at the library door, her fragrant cheek close to his shoulder and his eyes laughing amazingly into hers, with an expression she had never seen in them before; today she was aware of him for the first time as—a man . . . a strange, vital, dominant man. And she was a little afraid. Not of him, but of herself.

DAILY TRUE STORY—Talking Clock

Ezra Pelfrey strode up from the field, dragging a fishing pole after him through the tall weeds that grew in the yard surrounding the farm house. The weeds were rank on every side. Pelfrey had an aversion for work that was not demanded by actual necessity. He was met at the doorway by Aletha, his companionable wife.

"Well," exclaimed Aletha; "hev yuh got here at last? An' not a fish, as I can see! Jes' as well 'a' been cleaning the weeds and grass out'n them 'taters."

"Drat the 'taters! They'll make 'taters, work or no work; grass or no grass. Whoever hyeard of a 'tater crop failin' in this country?"

"Hes it. Then let 'er go—I'm no guesser."

"Yuhr Uncle Nathan's dead; an' you've been sent for to hear the readin' o' the will."

"Yuh don't say? Who fetched the word?"

"Hm, so Uncle Nath's pegged out at last! Well, he was white leather, warn't he?"

Inherits Clock

"I reckon yuh'll come onto somethin' now, Ezry. I don't reckon he could ha' done anything less'n will yuh the mortgidge he had on this farm; an' maybe a thousand or two dollars besides."

"I don't know, Alethy. Thar's no tellin' what thet old skinflint had in his head time he made thet will. But I'll hitch old Ghostflower to the buggy, an' go down an' see about it."

"Hit's about time you had yuhr start in life, Ezry; an' maybe the old man hes remembered yuh liberal."

"Maybe so. Anyhow, he won't be a potterin' around here, a joggin' an' a botherin' me about not workin' this field or that'n; an' tellin' me about the crops he used to make on this place—an' remindin' me 'bout how long I've had it 'thout ever payin' him a cent on it."

When Ezra returned at a late hour in the afternoon, he lifted out an oblong box which had extended from the foot of the vehicle up across the seat and beyond the back. With some difficulty he set it down upon the end of the small verandah. Aletha had come forward with whetted curiosity to inspect the object.

"What is it?"

"Not a form thing, Alethy, but that dad-fetched old fancy clock he bought the last time he was up to York. Thet mortgidge still stands agin us, the old corkscrew! I hope the scritch owls'll keep him comp'ny wherever he is."

"Thet's the clock they said would run a hundred days 'thout windin', I reckon?"

"Yeah. Hit's a derned pity we can't make a cider press or a pea puller out'n it."

"I dunno, Ezry. We're needin' a clock, I reckon."

"Whar do we want this thing?"

"Set it on thet bedroom shelf hit'll jest about reach the top o' the wall. Hit'll be the only highfalutin' thing we got."

Fond of Clock

Ezra secured an axe and attacked the case in which the clock was packed, and with about as much care as might have attended an effort of his to make an entrance into a hollow tree. But the delicate piece of mechanism came out without injury, and soon was set going; and Ezra and Aletha stood back to gaze upon it. The works of the clock were encased in brass; and as Ezra's curiosity was about on a par with his energy, the time-piece was allowed to proceed on its way, ticking off the passing moments, without further molestation.

Ezra filled a cob pipe with a mixture of fig leaves and tobacco, and sought the shade of a mulberry tree in the back yard to enjoy a smoke.

But Ezra developed a sort of fondness for the clock, and found himself a little more interested in the passing of time, though he did not learn to value the moments any more highly.

The clock remained a very innocent piece of furniture for about two months. Then, one night at midnight, Ezra was called out of his sleep by a very familiar voice which proved to be proceeding directly from the clock.

"Put yuhr hand to the plow," the voice was saying. "Turn them sedge fields, Ezry! Plow deep! You can't expect to make a livin' 'thout work! Plow the spring-branch field. Plow it deep an' close—thar's whar yuhr money lies!"

"Jest as I expected," declared Ezra, dropping back upon the bed in despair. "Ain't no use shucksin' an' pshawin' about it, hit's Uncle Nath's speerit in thet derned clock; an' I thought I'd hyeard the last o' his everlastin' 'Put yuhr hand to the plow, Ezry!'"

"Spring-branch field be hanged!" anathematized Ezra. "Thet stubble is rooted like a pine thicket; an' I'll never stick no plow in thet lot."

Ezra had difficulty in going to sleep for two or three nights following, in superstitious dread of old Nathan. But the voice had remained silent. In fact, the clock had been rewound, and had ticked off another sixty days without another word. Then Ezra was aroused one night in the same manner as before.

"Put yuhr hand to the plow—turn them sedge fields, Ezry," said the voice, then it delivered the rest of the argument.

"Mean to pile our things together; an' by daylight we'll be movin' away from here—movin' ever'thing, yuh understand, but thet dinged old clock. Hit stays right here. Jeemes Baxter can have it along wi' the rest o' the place—an' he can make wall paper for the barn door out'n his mortgidge, ef he wants to."

Ezra had been gone many days before James Baxter moved into the house he had quitted. He found the clock faithfully performing its function in the silence of the bedroom. He wound the clock, and set about bringing some order out of the chaos that existed about the place. In the meantime he had puzzled over a question Ezra had asked him the only time they had met since the latter's departure.

Begins Investigation

"Hes the clock talked to yuh any yet, Jeemes?"

But the matter was made clear, when the clock surely talked, one night, addressing itself to the absent Ezra in accustomed language.

James Baxter immediately got a screw driver, and a few moments later, the works of the clock had been laid bare. Inside he found a tiny phonograph reproducer and a small record which old Nathan evidently had had installed in the clock to order. A clever arrangement provided for the rewinding of the phonograph spring at each winding of the clock; and a little brake attached to the record table was set to be released only when the heavy weight of the clock had reached a certain point low-down in the weight shaft. Baxter reasoned that all of this had been arranged for a purpose. Accordingly he plowed the spring-branch field—plowed it deep. This resulted in the discovery of a small iron box half filled with gold and silver coin, enough to have paid off the mortgage with interest.

When the news of this reached Ezra, his mouth stood open for a moment, then he exclaimed:

"No matter; I would n' ha' plowed thet spring-branch field for the dinged place an' a cow an' calf throwed in."

Park Has His Answer

District Attorney Park, fidgeting and squirming at the suggestion that he lay the city Department of Supplies scandal before the grand jury, has demanded to know by what authority he could proceed.

He has his answer in the Superior Court decision, just handed down, which upholds the conviction and sentence in the case of the Luzerne County commissioners, found guilty of "misbehavior in office," removed from office, fined $100 and sentenced to a year in jail.

Their offense consisted simply in awarding a contract involving an expenditure of more than $300 without advertising for bids.

There are striking parallels in the case to the charges made in the local scandal. The city officials who have purchased supplies for Pittsburgh are also accused of having made contracts involving expenditures in excess of the amount specified by the law without advertising for bids. They are accused of having evaded the law by parceling a $10,000 contract into many small contracts so as to avoid the necessity of advertising for bids. They are accused of having awarded many contracts to high bidders.

The Superior Court's opinion is so clear and simple that a child could understand it. The court says a law requiring municipal work to be advertised and given to the lowest responsible bidder is mandatory and that "one who wilfully neglects to perform any duty which he is bound by statute to perform is guilty of a misdemeanor at common law, and if so, it is within the discretion of the court to impose a prison sentence if a penalty, as in this statute, is not prescribed."

This quotation from the opinion is commended to District Attorney Park's attention: "Public officers with mandatory duties to perform under the law are presumed to know the law, and if they wilfully do an act which is in violation of that mandatory duty, it becomes an indictable offense."

It almost seems as if the Superior Court were speaking of conditions in Pittsburgh when it says: "Private negotiations and favoritism are always to be avoided, as they invariably result in disaster to the municipality."

Controller Kerr announces an audit will be made of the accounts of the Department of Supplies. His zeal is too belated to be impressive. It is not to be forgotten that former Controller Evans had given public warning in regard to the "irregularities," yet Kerr did nothing. If he had been sufficiently alert, it would not have been necessary for a private citizen to expose the mess. No great enthusiasm is possible for an audit ordered only after the citizens' demand for an inquiry had reached the degree of vehemence and intensity that is now in evidence.

Kerr's affiliation with the Kline administration is also so close as to make his audit of doubtful merit. He was elected controller by the City Council, which has shown itself subservient to Mayor Kline, Councilmen Garland and Anderson being the only members who have displayed any independence. For Kerr, a creature of the Kline administration, to investigate the administration, is almost on the same order as Mayor Kline's investigation of acts for which he shared responsibility.

Council, sitting as such and not as a finance committee, has a last chance on Monday to reverse itself and conduct an investigation of the supplies mess. District Attorney Park is reported to be waiting to see what it will do.

THE SUN-TELEGRAPH SUBMITS THAT ENOUGH EVIDENCE HAS ALREADY BEEN PUBLISHED TO JUSTIFY ACTION BY THE DISTRICT ATTORNEY; THAT THERE IS GOOD REASON TO DOUBT, EVEN IF COUNCIL DOES UNDERTAKE AN INQUIRY, THAT IT WILL BE AS DILIGENT AND AGGRESSIVE AS THE PUBLIC WELFARE REQUIRES, AND THAT, IN ANY EVENT, THE MATTER SHOULD BE LAID BEFORE A GRAND JURY.

Desirable Voting Reforms

Fraud Will Be More Difficult If the Legislature Adopts the Proposed Election Code.

Representative D. Gl... Moore, of Washington County, calls attention to a provis... in the proposed election code now before the General Assembly, requiring voters to sign a check list when casting their ballots, as a guarantee against fraud.

This is the very thing that was recommended by Judge George V. Moore last week in commenting on some cases of election cheating that were brought before him.

It is but one of many desirable reforms provided for by the code. The proposed election legislation is not perfect, but it represents an honest effort on the part of an intelligent commission to free Pennsylvania from the most glaring of the evils with which the casting and counting of the citizens' ballots have been surrounded.

With the adoption of the code and the installation of voting machines, there will be less likelihood of the scandals that have accompanied every hotly contested election in recent years.

Ugliness May Be Illegal

Chief Justice Frazer, of the Supreme Court, Hands Down An Important Decision.

The American Civic Association is acclaiming a decision handed down by Chief Justice Frazer, of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, upholding a municipal art commission in its right to regulate projections over city streets.

The association is particularly delighted with this paragraph from Justice Frazer's opinion:

"The State, and by delegation the city, have for many years been universally recognized as having police power to regulate esthetics in public property. The police power is available for the suppression of a nuisance whether offending hearing, smell or sight."

There is certainly a warning in it for those who wantonly flaunt ugliness before the people.

The Ostrich Fools Only Himself -:- By Nelson Harding

His small and empty head
Does not conceal him any more
Than words so smugly said

By public servants when accused
Of going wrongful ways,
And "I refuse to answer" will
Not blind the public's gaze.

Get Us Our Rainbows

God's greatest gift to woman is her imagination. Her ability to glorify herself, her life and the world around her.

When a woman looks into the mirror she does not see the vaguely pretty but distinguished face which confronts her. She sees a vision, a "picture," a colorful personality born of her imagination.

Even the plainest woman goes through life playing a "role" in her own fancy. Several million women have believed themselves the reincarnation of Cleopatra. And as many million more have fancied they were doubles for Mary Pickford or Gloria Swanson.

This is not vanity. It is Nature's way of helping us escape from the commonplace and dullness of life. It is the secret satisfaction of our yearning for the picturesque and the romantic.

In the same way, woman's imagination glorifies her life. Somehow she can hang a glamour of romance around the silliest little love affair, the tawdriest little passing flirtaton, the most casual incident.

It is not what actually happened that she remembers, it is the meaning she reads into a man's kisses, the something she fancied he saw in his eyes or detected in his words or his voice.

Do you fancy that the woman who loves a man sees the same prosaic, bloody, heavy-footed creature that YOU see, when she looks at him? Never! She sees a potential Napoleon, a modern Lancelot, a Yancy Cravat lacking only the polished high boots and white sombrero. SOMETHING dashing, or distinguished, or picturesque!

* * *

If a woman could not idealize and glorify a man she would die of emotional starvation in these prosaic days.

* * *

The truth is that ALL of us, men and women alike, are passionately seeking the picturesque and the romantic in this life. We HATE the humdrum and the matter-of-fact flatness of everyday existence.

* * *

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 6.—Thoughts while strolling: Window sign: "Airplane Merchandise at Submarine Prices." What became of hand-painted plaques? And hairpin lace? More callous sex plays so brilliantly dialogued. Nellie Revell is skipping about these days, hooray.

Leon Gordon, a Moscow (Russia) boy, who made good in the city. Social clubs are taking it on the chin. Unpaid dues and no cafe business. Noel Coward and his theatrical company—all four of them. They say Chevalier walks on his hands at intimate tea parties.

Hope Williams walks like a stage Bowery girl. And real Bowery girls walk like anyone else. So many blondes resemble Ann Harding. The Rev. Randolph Ray of the Little Church. Few surpass Theodore Dreiser in expressing a solitary genius. Phoebe Foster resembles Ethel Barrymore.

George S. Kaufman is the easiest man on the Rialto to caricature. The Sixth avenue shooting galleries desolated. What became of the sale of the Hippodrome? Phil Baker's roguish smile. Upton Sinclair's newest book indicts civilization again, the old chronic indicter.

Barney Gallant shaves three times a day. A tea room featuring parchesi. If they revive crokinole, I'll be furious. The old-time theatrical costume shop has passed. Gloomy, romantic spots.

That trap drum store—selling silver derby hats, cat calls, cocoanut shells, sleigh bells and wire whisks. Nobody gets more fun out of life than a trap drummer. But why the term trap? Irene Bordoni's beauty spot. Every other book is by someone who knew the Czar personally.

Somehow passing the Globe Theater I think of Lotta Faust. The after-matinee stage crowd at Dinty Moore's. The smell of hot ginger bread—yum, yum! Almost as delightful as the odor of freshly roasted peanuts. Who remembers when sinus trouble was catarrh?

In a lower Broadway skyscraper are many firms of international engineers, constructors and financiers of public works. Here men at glass-topped desks deal with devastating world drama. Often a young engineer is told at 4 p. m to go up the gangplank at midnight for the other side of the world.

Always the air of suppressed excitement. Each hour may bring high adventure. These firms stretch railroads across the Andes and Persian deserts. They dig tunnels through impassable mountains, explore lost mines and restore lost cities.

The personnel includes those who have touched almost inaccessible spots in Asia, crossed India from Karachi to Bombay to Madras to Ceylon before reaching 30 and are still considered mere striplings who have seen very little of the world.

The most exciting post in such firms is expediting manager. Without leaving his desk he routes engineers to outer rims of the globe. He knows instantly the condition of the road from Bakhu to Teheran, the air route from Lima to Santiago or whether transports are running this month or next from Damascus to Bagdad. They are walking Baedekers who in many instances never stepped off Manhattan Island. Yet they know the queer customs, currency, the geography, main streets and best hotels from some whistle stop on the dinky Ugandi to Stockholm.

There is a diffidence about the seasoned traveler difficult for us stay-at-homes to grasp. A year ago I ran across a traveled acquaintance leisurely strolling and puffing a pipe on West Fifty-third street. We chatted awhile, suddenly he looked at his watch and said he must be off to pack. He was sailing at 10 for a remote post in Persia, to be gone two years. I twitched about on the pillow in the wide-eyed manner of the gold fish all night, just thinking about it.

In Atlantic crossings I have frequently in ship lounges been thrown into the company of those highly professional tweedy voyagers with Sherlock Holmes deerstalker caps. They refer casually to remote places they visit—places the pronunciation of which you often wondered about. Their worldliness soon makes you feel your European jaunt is somewhat like a dinky ferryboat ride to Staten Island.

PROBABILITIES

By Archibald Henderson

It is customary to think of mathematics as a science which deals only with certainty. But today the theory of probability has taken such a hold upon the thinking of scientists that we are perhaps justified in speaking of the reign of probability. Although the theory of probability has a somewhat disreputable origin, in the calculations of a gambler, today it is the foundation stone of all insurance and actuarial companies and has come to play a role of ever-increasing importance in modern mathematics, physics, chemistry and astronomy.

Almost 400 years ago a professional gambler, the Chevalier de Mere, began to make some calculations regarding the likelihood of throwing a pair of sixes with two dice. His calculations, however, were incorrect, and he referred to the famous mathematician, Pascal. The latter, in turn, corresponded with a colleague, the brilliant Fermat. Between them they worked out the scientific basis of the theory of and started on its way a scientific study of even widening application and enlarging usefulness.

The following is an interesting problem which may appeal to anyone. Suppose N balls numbered from I to N are mixed in a sack and drawn one at a time; what is the probability that not a single ball be drawn in its proper order? A humorous way of putting this problem, together with the answer, is: "If every inhabitant of Chicago got drunk and went home by guess-work, the chance that at least one would get back to his own home is almost two out of three." The chance, for a reasonably large number, is 1 divided by 2.71828 . . .

Professor Warren Weaver, of the University of Wisconsin, has recently given many examples of practical problems, from which the three following are chosen:

What is the probability, in an elimination tennis tournament involving 32 players, that the best and next best player will actually meet in the final contest?

The "Big Bertha" shells fell in Paris at the points indicated on a given map. What is the probable direction of the gun?

What is the probability that every member of a jury will, in the fact of confusing and doubtful evidence, vote wrongly?

The influence of the theory of probability upon our lives and fortunes is scarcely to be credited, because of its very magnitude. Insurance concerns are exceptionally stable, because the theory of probability is so reliable when applied to large numbers. The people of the United States obligates itself to pay premiums on more than $100,000,000,000 of life insurance alone, and this amount is about one-third of our total national wealth. This is a fact of very great significance. Ex-President Coolidge recently said: "The life insurance organizations ought to be a source of great pride and satisfaction to the country at large. They are a stupendous force enlisted on the side of public health, sound finance, economic betterment and moral well-being."

Isn't It So?

Tell a small boy he knows entirely too much and he will kick about going to school any longer.

Text for Today No servant can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon.—Luke, xvi:13.

Nose and Character

In Monkeys as in Men, the Nose Has Meaning.

A ROMAN SENATOR—ALMOST.

Human beings think very little about the meaning and importance of their noses, except that ladies spend a good deal of time powdering their noses, which would be better off unpowdered, leaving the pores of the skin open.

Men think little of their noses except when they have bad colds, then they wish they hadn't any, which is unreasonable.

These pictures will interest you, and if you are of the scientific mind, will even startle you, because of the strange monkey resemblance to human beings.

But nature, and what scientists call evolution, have produced many strange noses in many different forms of life. The elephant breathes with the tip of its trunk, the caterpillar through holes in its sides, the fish with its gills.

First, what IS the nose? Its principal function of course is breathing.

After our last breath we die, and so do animals below us except certain "anaerobic" microbes or germs that live without air.

Next in importance to breathing comes the sense of smell that resides in the nose, and is important far beyond the understanding of the average human being.

To a great majority of animals, living always in danger of attack, the nose is the most important organ for defense, more important even than sight or hearing.

You may approach your elephant or other wild animal safely, if the wind is blowing from the elephant toward you, blowing the odor of your body away from him. But get on the other side, let the wind blow from you to him, taking to the particularly keen nostrils at the end of his long trunk the odor of a human being and you LOSE HIM. He is gone in a second.

And what applies to your elephant applies to thousands of other animals.

As men have developed in civilization their noses have become less and less important, merely vehicles for breathing. Some of the lower savages use their noses in many ways. Civilized man occasionally smells a flower in a perfunctory fashion, or puts a bottle of bootleg liquor to his nose to test it. Otherwise the nose is forgotten.

But as we become more civilized and develop all of our senses fully, the sense of smell will be highly cultivated, bringing us in contact with flowers and other perfumes, including that of the air, which has a peculiar fragrance of its own in different places.

But let us return to our monkeys, so solemn.

The nose develops with thought, it increases in size, and this applies to the individual as well as to the race.

No rule holds good with that strange creature, man. But as a rule, back of a nose without character, a trifling meaningless nose, there stands a brain also without much character.

The face reflects the mind, and the working of the brain has brought the forehead out, pushed the mouth and jaw back, developed the expression of the eyes, built up the nose.

Of course there is such a thing as OVERDOING THE UPBUILDING, as shown in this poor proboscis monkey, which plainly has more nose than brain.
